BU Foundation and Alumni Association to fund addition to Alumni House

Spring groundbreaking for addition expected

The Alumni Association will usher in the new century with a significant addition to the Howard F. Fenstemaker Alumni House.

The project will add 2,675 square feet, with nearly half that space being a "great room" for receptions, meetings and other alumni activities.

"This exciting project would not be possible without the generous support of the Bloomsburg University Foundation," said Eileen Albertson Chapman '67, president of the Alumni Association.

"We are especially grateful for the support of Tony Ianiero, vice president for advancement and executive director of the foundation," she added.

"In the spirit of cooperation, the Alumni Association Board of Directors has pledged the support of our alumni in funding the difference between the foundation grant and the actual cost of construction."

If everything proceeds according to plan, the groundbreaking will occur sometime in the spring. Dedication of the new facility could be a highlight of Homecoming 2000.

The Fenstemaker Alumni House has been the home of the Alumni Association since 1985, when the association purchased the 1929 structure from the estate of the late Dorothy John Dillon '24. Since that time, it has been the location of the Alumni Office and numerous alumni activities.

In addition to the great room, the expansion will include a new entrance foyer and reception area, two accessible restrooms, a kitchen, coatroom and storage area. Some other improvements to the existing structure will also be part of the project, including a new heating and air conditioning system.

The addition will feature a new entrance on the side facing the compus.

The existing Alumni House is shown in orange; the oddition is shown in gold.

HUSKY AMBASSADORS – Representing the best qualities of the student body at Bloomsburg University, the Husky Ambassadors were established in 1985 to promote the interests and goals of the university from a student's perspective. As Ambassadors, the students are personally committed to excellence. They serve as official greeters at such events as Homecoming, Alumni Weekend, open house programs for prospective students and receptions at the home of the university president. They are committed to the proposition that students' involvement in and support of Bloomsburg University should not end when they complete their studies, but should be continued through life. Serving as Ambassadors during the current academic year are (front, from left) Dawn Seiders, Alicia Winters, Jennifer Rossi, Amy McCormick, Katie Stockinger, Crystal Garman, Allyson Bawcum, A.J. Madden, Jaclyn Bivaletz; (row two) Sue Berryman, Leanne Gravino, Catherine Gravina, Jeff Bryant, Jann Guisewhite, Mike Hoppes, Heidi Meyerhoffer, Pamela DiGiacomo; (row three) Lazaro Mayar, Miki Smith, Dave Marcolla, Eliza Ayers, Joe Radzievich, Nate Milton; (holding banner) Shawn Roberts and John Christmas. Absent: Sarah Kolsevich.

Special appeal nets $36,383

The Alumni Association would like to thank everyone who contributed to the special appeal that was mailed in September.

As of December 17, 1999, a total of $36,383 had been received from 821 alumni.

"We are gratified by the response to the special campaign," said Eileen Albertson Chapman '67, president of the Alumni Association.

"This extra financial support, coupled with the annual budget provided by the Bloomsburg University Foundation, will enable us to enhance the programs and services offered to our 44,000 alumni.

"Specifically, it will help us expand communications to our alumni through Maroon & Gold, which grows from 40 to 52 pages with this issue, as well as through the Internet. In addition, we plan to sponsor more constituent group reunions such as the successful M&G newspaper staff and Concert Choir alumni reunions held in 1999."

Of the total number of contributors, 70% were alumni who already made a contribution earlier in 1999; 11% made a contribution in 1998; 13% made their last contribution prior to 1998; and 6% were first-time contributors.

At 95, twin sisters remain quite a pair

From an article by Beth Long, The Record, Horsham, August 6, 1999

Sitting side by side on the couch, Isabelle Ferguson Lettinger '24 and Charlotte Ferguson Ford '24 seem like mirror images. The 95-year old twins braid their hair in the same fashion, wear similar cotton blouses with their summer skirts and sport the same winning smile.

But appearances can be deceiving. Take, for instance, their personalities.

"I do have a little humor stuck in," Isabelle admits. "This is rough world."

Charlotte, on the other hand, is somewhat quiet and a bit more serious.

Together they make quite a pair.

"We've always stuck together. People don't realize that twins are different from two sisters," Isabelle says. "You're closer."

The twins were born July 30, 1904, in Bryn Mawr. They are two of eight children–four boys and four girls–born to Irish-Scottish immigrants William and Annie Ferguson, who later settled in Jenkintown. William worked as a coachman taking wealthy families on trips with his carriage and horses. For a time, he also cleaned and readied the car for the Wanamakers of Philadelphia department store fame.

The sisters joined Grace Presbyterian Church in Jenkintown in 1915.

"When you were younger, you went to church. We had a big children's department. That's where your friends were," explained Isabelle, who still attends services there, while Charlotte goes to her daughter's church.

The sisters attended Jenkintown schools and are their oldest alumni. They both studied elementary education at Bloomsburg University, then called Bloomsburg State Normal School.

Charlotte remembers the fun of growing up as half of a set of twins. The pair often dressed alike when they were youngsters. Their relatives could tell them apart, but others would sometimes confuse the two – which could actually work to their advantage.

Isabelle recalled a time when they were in college and Charlotte skipped class because she wasn't feeling well. Isabelle stepped right in but not without wondering if they could really pull it off.

"I didn't know much about the class when I went in, so I was very nervous. I just sat there and prayed the whole time," she said.

After graduating in 1924, the pair became teachers in the Upper Moreland School District. They were responsible for an array of subjects from reading to art and physical education.

Charlotte taught for four years until she married plumber and building inspector Chester Ford. In those days, you weren't allowed to teach and be married. They raised two sons, now deceased, and a daughter, Charlotte Ford, who lives with her mother in Hatboro.

Isabelle met her future husband "on the job." She and Upper Moreland School Superintendent Leonard Lettinger wed in November 1941. They had one son, now deceased, and moved to Huntingdon Valley. Isabelle moved back to Jenkintown in 1970.

Charlotte Ferguson Ford and Isabelle Ferguson Lettinger

The twins' brother, Edward Ferguson, 86, lives in Jenkintown. Both women are widows.

The pair enjoy good health and share many memories.

Charlotte has lived in the same house in Hatboro since she was married. She remembers the old movie house on Old York Road where they would go to see the latest Hollywood pictures.

"It was a little different then, not as many people," Isabelle said of Jenkintown. But it still holds charm for her.

"It's a lovely little town. It's still home to me."

When she was younger, Isabelle shopped at Strawbridge's and worked at McDonald's, "the drugstore, not that other McDonald's," she joked. Those and other shops have come and gone over the years.Neither sister has ever driven a car. They a have grown accustomed to walking to the market or just strolling through town. Isabelle, in particular, enjoys frequent walks.

"I still like to get out and walk. You can talk to yourself."

She also enjoys knitting "to keep myself out of trouble," she joked. The hats she makes are donated to church bazaars or needy children.

Charlotte reads her Bible several times daily. She phones her sister at about the same time each day and visits her in Hatboro for a few days every couple of weeks.

"They've been there for each other through husbands and children," says Susan Ryerson, Charlotte's granddaughter visiting from Woodstock, Georgia. She is one of three grandchildren. There are five great-grandchildren.

Ryerson credits the twins' "simple lives" for their longevity.

"You got married, stayed home to raise your children and walked where you needed to go. I don't think they've ever eaten fast food."
Both Charlotte and Isabelle hang out their wash every day. Charlotte is known in the family for her wonderful cooking.

As for the secret to a long and happy life, Isabelle offered these thoughts: "You live one day at a time and maintain a sense of humor. You take life as it comes and are grateful. So many people just take things for granted, like their health or what they have."

1958

Paul Anderson '58 has retired as associate dean and university registrar at Furman University.

He is the immediate past president of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO).

His long career in higher education also included service to Trenton State College as assistant registrar and registrar; the New Jersey State Scholarship Commission as assistant director; Dickinson College as assistant basketball coach and registrar; and Frostburg State College as registrar.

Also active in numerous state and regional associations that support AACRAO, Paul was president of Middle States ACRAO in 1975 and served as president of the Carolinas ACRAO in 1988. In 1992, he received CACRAO's Award of Excellence.

He served as president of Southern ACRAO in 1991 and was elected to AACRAO's board of directors for a three-year term as secretary-treasurer in 1992.

In 1998-1999 he served as president of AACRAO at a pivotal stage in the association's recovery process.

Paul is known for his commitment and passion for higher education as well as his devotion to AACRAO. His unruffled composure enabled him to affect AACRAO positively during a time of turmoil for the organization.

His commitment to AACRAO is evident in the countless hours spent assessing problems and working toward solutions to help put AACRAO back on its feet.

Paul has served as a part-time assistant basketball coach for Joe Williams, was pitcher for the 1985 and 1987 intramural champions of the Furman Championship Division Fast Pitch Softball League and was "Horseshoes and Hot Shot Shoot Out" champion at Furman.

He also served his community on the advisory council of two technical colleges in South Carolina, as a fraternity advisor, chairman of a citizen's advisory council, a class advisor, faculty secretary at two institutions. He continues to serve as a basketball official.

He attended Drew University School of Theology and Southern Illinois University, where he earned a master's degree in student personnel. He subsequently completed coursework for a doctorate at Rutgers University.

Elwood H. Beaver '42 of Riverhead, NY, died on August 12, 1999, at age 87.

A veteran of World War II, he served four years with the Army Air Corps with overseas service in Iceland and Europe. He attained the rank of master sergeant.

Within one month of leaving the service in 1946, he began his teaching career at Pierson High School in Sag Harbor. In 1948 he joined the faculty of Riverhead High School, where he later became director of educational communication. He retired in 1976 after 28 years of service.

For 17 years he applied an interest in photography to his RHS work as yearbook faculty advisor, bringing personal involvement to every photo in the yearbook (with the exception of senior portraits).

Gardening and woodworking were his other main interests.

Surviving are his wife, Rolande; two children, Marilyn Laberge and Dennis Beaver.

Robert J. Parrish, vice president for administration at Bloomsburg University since 1982, retired in December.

During his tenure, the university experienced dramatic growth in its facilities, including the Montgomery Apartments, the Student Recreation Center, the new Andruss Library and new athletic fields as well as numerous renovations and expansions.

In addition, many services were added or improved, especially those involving campus safety issues.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, Dr. Parrish served as assistant vice president for administrative affairs at Florida Atlantic University. During his 11-year tenure there, he earned doctor of education, master of public administration and education specialist degrees.

A native of Bellaire, Ohio, he earned his bachelor's degree at Ohio University.

He and his wife, Sherry, have moved to Florida (just in time to avoid another Northeast winter).

He and his wife, Bobbi, are parents of three children: Shannon, Andy and Sean. He plans to continue traveling around the country collecting memorabilia from the academic institutions he visits.

Duane A. Belles '58 of Warren, MI, died on August 31, 1999, at age 62.

Jane Reinaker Wilhour '61, professor of education and assistant dean of the College of Education at Texas A&M University, Corpus Christi, was named a Regents Professor by the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents.

The purpose of the award is to honor individuals at the rank of professor or equivalent who have provided exemplary service as faculty members, not only to their university or agency, but also to the community, state, nation and in the international arena.

Dr. Wilhour, who has been with the university since 1975, was among seven faculty members system-wide to receive the award.

Dr. Robert R. Furgason, A&M-Corpus Christi president, called Wilhour an outstanding example of service.

"Jane is an exemplary professor, a prolific researcher and a skilled community liaison," he said. "Perhaps her lasting legacy to the university will be the Early Childhood Development Center. She was the driving force behind that unique project."

Jane has also been designated a Sid Richardson Fellow by the A&M System and is part of a research team examining student wellness problems and programs in area elementary schools.

In addition, she was the impetus behind the university's Teacher Resource Center, a giant lending library of instructional aids and educational manipulatives open to all educators and parents at no cost.

Curtis R. English '56, who served as interim president of Bloomsburg University in 1993 and 1994, died on November 13, 1999, after suffering a heart attack at his home in Madisonville, TN.

He reportedly was cutting a neighbor's grass when he was stricken.

President Jessica Kozloff called his death "a stunning loss."

"The thing about Curt that comes to mind immediately is his selflessness. I have tremendous gratitute for what he did as interim president."

She noted that English came to Bloomsburg as interim president knowing that state policy prevents the interim from becoming a candidate for the permanent position.

"Yet he refused to sit idle and proceeded to lay groundwork to insure the success of anyone who followed him in this position. He was a wonderful healing presence at the time and set the stage for the next chapter in Bloomsburg's history.

"The character of this wonderful man and his love for this university contributed to the success we continue to enjoy today. He was a great person and a tremendous alum."

While at Bloomsburg, English helped reactivate a town-gown committee as a forum to deal with issues of concern.

In what may be his most enduring contribution to the university, he changed a plan that would have left the new Andruss Library unfinished. Original plans called for the fourth floor to be left as a "shell" for future expansion.

But he told officials "A 75 percent library is not what we need. We need a 100 percent library."

After convincing the BU Foundation Board of Directors to raise an extra $1 million, he persuaded the Council of Trustees to change the building plans.

When President Kozloff took over the reins on July 1, 1994, English returned to East Stroudsburg University and resumed his role as vice president of finance and administration.

He then became president of Hiwassee College in Madisonville, where he served from July 1, 1996, until his death. He had planned to retire in 2001.

Before joining East Stroudsburg's administrative team, he served as manager of corporate planning for VSE Corporation in Virginia. He was also executive director of the Presidential Commission on Merchant Defense.

English had a distinguished 30-year career in the U.S. Navy, completing his service with the rank of captain.

In 1974, the Bloomsburg University Alumni Association honored English by bestowing its Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his Navy career. The following year, he assumed leadership of the BU alumni chapter in the Washington, D.C. area, where the English family lived for many years.

In recognition of his enthusiastic and dedicated service with the D.C. alumni group, English was invited to serve on the Alumni Board of Directors. He continued to serve through much of the 1980s.

He held a doctor of education degree in educational administration from Vanderbilt University. He earned a master's degree from the University of Oklahoma.

Surviving are his wife, Janet, and three sons: Curtis III, Gary and Scott; two granddaughters and a brother.

1962

William Krash '62 has retired as principal of Shenandoah Valley School District after serving since 1994.

He began his teaching career in Waterloo, NY, and then moved to the Wachtung Hills School District in New Jersey where he served as football, wrestling and baseball coach.

Following his tenure as marketing and distributive education instructor at Schuylkill Intermediate Unit 29 and a promotion to supervisor of adult and pupil services, Bill took a hiatus from the classroom to hone his business teaching skills through employment with the Goodyear Corporation in New Brunswick, NJ.

He later devoted four years to customizing the Pennsylvania Department of Education's "Big E" (Business, Industry, Government, Education) job training program, and continued on with an additional four years as a department consultant in the areas of staff development, building expansions, program approvals and curriculum development.

Serving Penn State and Luzerne County Community College as director of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Technical Preparation Consortium, Bill brought applied education into all the schools in the 11-county area.

His newest challenge is serving as executive director of the Schuylkill Institute of Business and Technology Center in Pottsville.

Bill earned a master's degree at Temple University in 1990.

He and his wife, Donna, have a daughter, Kimberly Ann, and one granddaughter. They live in the Shenandoah village of Turkey Run.

1964

Robert Hensley '64 retired in 1999 after a 35-year teaching career. He taught chemistry at Meyers High School in Wilkes-Barre for 29 years.

He started his career at Coughlin High School where he taught for six years. He recalls that when he began teaching in 1964, his salary was $4,500.

"So you can tell I didn't get into teaching for the money. If you don't like teaching, it is the worst job in the world. But if you do like it, well, it's not like having a job at all. Teaching is a gift."

After all those years in the classroom, a teacher such as Bob might find himself bumping into former students in the strangest of places.

A few years back, he needed gall bladder surgery. Lying on a hospital gurney dressed in a paper gown, he expected to see the father of a former student peering down at him. Instead, it was the former student – Mark Schiowitz.

"I immediately thought to myself, 'Good God, what kind of grades did I give that boy?'"

Schiowitz, who said he got good marks from Bob, remembers his teacher as a dramatic, engaging man.

"He was so theatrical and funny. We even got around to some science once in a while," Schiowitz said. "But seriously, he did whatever was necessary to get through to a class."

It wasn't always easy, though. Looking back on past classes, Bob said he has noticed an alarming trend.

"This was not the job I signed on for 35 years ago," he said. "Then, there was a different ethic. Students had an intrinsic respect for their teachers, a desire to please them.

"Now, students desire to please themselves."

But Bob doesn't blame today's children for their attitudes. He blames society as a whole.

"Our priorities are all screwed up. Our values are a mess. When I was in school, you felt sorry for the kids who had jobs because that meant their families needed help putting food on the table," he said. "Now our children have jobs so they can buy jeans and cars."

Bob's parents were both Bloomsburg alumni. His father, Charles Hensley '33, was a teacher and principal in Wilkes-Barre schools for 43 years. His mother, Elizabeth Krumanocker Hensley '34, taught for only two years but was a Girl Scout leader for many years. Both were recipients of BU Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Awards.

"They instilled in me a real value of education and the desire to educate others," Bob said. "They were both inspirations to me."

Vincent Gilotti '64 reports his appraisal service in Lehighton has survived the real estate market roller coaster ride for 25 years.

Gilotti is qualified to appraise all properties, and his experience includes residential, commercial, apartments and farm properties.

He is one of only three or four people in the Poconos who hold the elite designation of Senior Residential Appraiser, which he earned through the Appraisal Institute, the world's leading organization of real estate appraisers.

He is also a State Certified General Appraiser.

Since 1974, he has appeared and testified in Carbon County Court as an expert witness at boards of view and court trials. Since 1979, he has been a member of the Carbon County Board of Viewers, which hears real estate cases for eminent domain.

He is a past president of the Carbon County Board of Realtors and past president of the 150-member Northeast Pennsylvania Chapter of the Appraisal Institute.

He got into the real estate business in 1970 and earned his broker's license in 1974.

must use the newspaper as a learning tool.

Robert, a 26-year teaching veteran, uses the newspaper in his contemporary world problems course.

He and his wife, Janette, are parents of Bobbi Lynn Markle '99 who teaches chemistry in the Southern Columbia School District.

Mary Ellen Golden Caffas '72 received the George M. Leader Excellence in Education Award as Outstanding Middle School Teacher at Upper Dauphin Middle School in Loyalton, where she has taught for 28 years.

She and her late husband, John, adopted ten boys and had one of their own. Since her husband's death in 1992, the family has grown by two more boys, whose adoptions are not yet finalized. She also has two granddaughters.

"She is just one of the most well-rounded individuals I've ever met in terms of her work, her involvement with education, her involvement in the community and her dedication to her family," said Susan L. Anthony, manager of the community services department at The Patriot-News. She and Newspapers in Education Coordinator Carol Conrad nominated Mary Ellen for the honor.

"Having raised so many kids herself gives her a very realistic picture of kids, so she really has a great rapport with young people," said Anthony.

Middle School Principal Marcia Magill said Caffas is tireless in the classroom and extracurricular work.

"She sees students as people who come to her with a history, sometimes very complex and sometimes very troubled, and so she treats them as whole people," Magill said.

"I love kids," said Caffas. "The most joy comes from a student who has found it very difficult to grasp a concept and all of a sudden does, and the light bulb kind of dawns – that is so gratifying."

Caffas serves as president of the Upper Dauphin Area Rotary Club and is past president of the Upper Dauphin Area Education Association.

Robert Kolenda '72 is completing his 27th year in the Neshaminy School District, where he has taught anatomy and physiology and has been the science lead teacher for the past five years.

He also teaches at Delaware County Community College and Cabrini College. Active on the board of directors of PASAP, he has been a reviewer for Scott Foresman Publishing.

His wife, the former Gail Stank '72, is in her fourth year at Media Management Services, an educational research and sales firm. She is the project sales manager for Disney Educational Productions.

She is on the board of directors of Young Singers of Pennsylvania and is assistant stage manager for a non-profit ballet company.

Centennial project starts

Transformation of Centennial Gym to Centennial Hall is underway. The renovation will expand the size of the building by 70,000 square feet, with a new main entrance facing the campus. The 1939 building's historic facade overlooking Second Street will remain unchanged, and the elm tree at the northeast corner of the building will be saved. When complete in the fall of 2000, Centennial Hall will include a nursing-wellness center, seminar and computer classrooms, five large classrooms and a 250-seat theatre-style lecture hall.

Completion by fall 2000 expected

NEW TREATMENT CENTER – The audiology and speech pathology department and its associated Speech, Hearing and Language Clinic will have a new home in Centennial Hall. An anonymous donor is supporting the department's new Alternative Communication and Treatment Center. Shown are Dianne and Richard Angelo, audiology and speech faculty members, and Ann Lee, dean of the College of Professional Studies.

Edward J. Poostay, director of Bloomsburg University's reading clinic for 19 years, died on September 29, 1999, at age 52.

When Poostay arrived at Bloomsburg in 1981, the annual reading conference drew just over 200 people. In recent years, it typically drew more than 1,100 educators, reading specialists and school administrators representing 190 school districts, 16 intermediate units, 13 state universities and seven states.

In addition to serving as clinic director, he served as coordinator of the graduate program in reading.

Poostay earned his bachelor's degree at Temple University, his master's degree at Penn State University and his doctorate at the University of Georgia.

Surviving are his wife, the former Cheryl Edunk; his mother and four sisters.

Mary Podrasky Kluck '73 of Simpson has helped to secure hundreds of blankets for children in regional hospitals as local coordinator of Project Linus.

Inspired by the blanket-toting character in the "Peanuts" comic strip, Project Linus was founded in 1995 by Karen Loucks-Bker of Parker, CO.

A instructional support teacher in Forest City, Mary learned ahout Project Linus from a daytime TV talk show in 1996.

Mary and some friends collected 230 blankets that they dropped off at Geisinger's pediatric ward.

"After we finished, I thought we were done," she recalls. "But then a Parade magazine article named me as a chapter coordinator and people from all over started sending me hlankets."

And she's been receiving blankets from all over the country ever since.

Project Linus, she emphasized, is perfect for those knitters who love to make blankets but have run out of people to give them to.

"I think these blankets are made with a lot of love and care, and I think it's because people get motivated. They know hey are staying right here in the community.

"I tell women, if you are a crafter, you will enjoy this. It's a good cause, and it's wonderful and worthwhile. These hlankets really do come from

Alumna tutors children in Poland

In July, Alumni Board member Joanne Shaffer Pileski '64 volunteered to tutor children in English during summer camp in Seidlce, Poland.

Joanne was a member of one of more than 150 teams who participated in a Global Volunteers service-learning program. Global Volunteers is a nonprofit, nonsectarian international development organization based in St. Paul, Minnesota. Founded in 1984, it strives to wage peace throughout the world by helping establish mutual understanding between people of diverse cultures.

Volunteers of all ages and from all backgrounds work in projects directed by host communities. Projects might include teaching conversational English, as did Joanne's experience; caring for children; assisting with health care; building community facilities; participating in natural resource projects; consulting in business; or painting and repairing homes. Programs are led in China, the Cook Islands, Vietnam, Indonesia, Tanzania, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Ireland, Mexico, Jamaica, Poland, Ukraine, Spain, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Ghana, India, Romania and the United States.

Volunteers generously contribute their time and skills to projects, paying all program-related costs. In return, they often discover that they receive much more than they give.

Joanne said that the young people who attend the camp where she worked must first take one or two years of English in the public school. Through games and activities she and other volunteers helped the children improve their conversational English.

"We are here on earth to serve, not to be served" is a motto Joanne lives by. She said she has reached the point where she does not enjoy travel unless it for education or volunteering!

Faith will be featured in the March issue of BLOOMSBURG, the university's magazine.

Anthony Iuniero '97 (Honorary), vice president for university advancement, was inducted into the Alumni Athletic Hall of Fame at The College of New Jersey (formerly Trenton State College) on October 29, 1999.

Iuniero, a 1974 and 1976 graduate of Trenton State, was a four-year letter winner in football and baseball. Later, he served as assistant football and baseball coach at Trenton before being promoted to assistant head coach and defensive coordinator from 1977 to 1983. During that time, the team and his defense were both nationally ranked and the team won two conference titles.

While at Trenton, Iuniero also held several other positions, including sports information director and assistant director of alumni affairs (1976 to 1978) as well as director of alumni affairs and assistant director of college development (1977 to 1983).

He was named Bloomsburg's director of development in 1984. He has served as vice president for advancement since 1993.

In 1997 he was designated an "honorary alumnus" by the Bloomsburg University Alumni Association.

He and his wife, Pam '93 (M), are parents of three children: Jennifer, Kristin and Joseph.

Maroon & Gold newspaper staff reunion:

In order to compile the mailing for the recent Maroon & Gold student newspaper reunion, I went back through every issue of the paper from 1960 to 1974. Anyone who was listed on the masthead was mailed a letter, provided we had a good address.

A few people were surprised to receive reunion information. As a member of the paper's management team in the late 60s and early 70s, I was not surprised.

Some wrote, "I have no idea why I received this. I don't remember being on the M&G!"

Ever desperate for help—remember, we pounded out every word on manual typewriters without the benefit of scanning or on-screen editing—we encouraged anyone with a remote interest in the paper to join the staff. Perhaps we added them to the masthead in the hope that seeing their names in print would encourage them to stay.

Some came and stayed, some came and went, some never showed up. Periodically we updated the masthead—"Oops, this one never worked here." However, that meant that a name could run for several issues without a person ever actually working on the paper.

This seems to have been the case with John D. Evans '66*. But his story, told in his own words, has an interesting twist: it's a beautiful tribute to Mr. Savage in whose honor the reunion was held.*

The secret of success

by John D. Evans '66

When I attended Bloomsburg way back in 1962, it was my intention to follow in my father's footsteps and major in physics. I soon discovered that my poor math skills were going to be a major handicap in pursuing that dream.

At about the same time, I was taking a freshman course in literature taught by Richard C. Savage. It was Mr. Savage who opened a whole new world for me. He introduced me to literature, the beauty of the written word and the subtleties of meaning.

Before the course was over, I gathered my courage and knocked on the door of the English Department Chairman, Cecil Seronsy, to request permission to switch from physics to English.

I can still hear his voice as I fumbled for something to fill out the form, "Good Lord, man! You walked in here without a pen?!"

Instantly, I had doubts about my decision. I made the switch anyway, however, and tried to take as many of Mr. Savage's courses as I could.

I experienced a wide variety classes in my new major, but somehow I always walked away from Mr. Savage's more enlightened and with a deeper appreciation for what I had read. Then something happened in a class that revealed his secret for success.

We had been given an assignment: a chapter or two to read and prepare for discussion. It soon became apparent that no one had done much reading the night before.

Debbie, Kai and John D. Evans '66

Mr. Savage paused and delivered one well-paced comment in his distinct, gentle voice, "Well...if no one has read the assignment, I guess I'll have to cancel class." Then he turned and walked quietly out of the room.

No one moved. In any other class, there would have been a celebration — but not here. Instead there was an overwhelming feeling that we had done something profoundly wrong. We had crushed his feelings. After a few minutes, some students left. Many of us stayed behind to read the assignment. By the next class, we all were ready for that discussion.

Doug Hippenstiel presents Judith and Dick Savage with a tree thanking them for hosting the picnic – again!

The editors line up: Macyle Phillips Candela (1961-62), E. Diane Campbell (1962-63), Doug Hippenstiel (1966-67), Rich Benyo (1968), Dick Savage (advisor), Joe Griffiths (1968-69), Jim Sachetti (1971-72), Susan Sprague Yeske (1972-73, 1974).

The secret was simple. Mr. Savage had a love for his subject that was universally recognized and respected by his students. I read many assignments for other professors—some in fear for my life, others from a sense of duty. Some, I must confess, didn't get read at all. But I always read in preparation for Mr. Savage, trying to anticipate his insights. In doing so I discovered insights of my own. That was why his classes were always more rewarding.

When I started my own career, I tried to pattern my teaching after Mr. Savage, loving my subject, respecting my students and quietly demanding that they try their best. It is a formula that has served me well for more than 30 years.

And for these same 30 years, I have regretted not being able to thank Mr. Savage.

After I graduated in 1966, I did not return to Bloomsburg. Almost as soon as I left school, a new building program threatened to tear up the campus, uproot stately trees and eliminate long walkways through wide expanses of lawn. I preferred to keep the memories of my college days untrampled by the footsteps of progress.

Then one day several months ago, I read in the Maroon & Gold alumni publication that a reunion was planned at the Savage Farm especially for student newspaper staff members who served during his tenure as advisor. I was instantly excited to learn that Mr. Savage was still in the area, but deeply disappointed that the picnic was not open to all. I had not been part of the newspaper staff.

Then, a few weeks later, miraculously, I received an invitation to the reunion. I had forgotten that when I switched to English, I thought I should be involved in something literary so I had attended an organizational meeting of the student paper, then called the Maroon & Gold.

Somehow my name stayed on the staff listing for more than three decades. Needless to say, this invitation was a sign from above. I made up my mind to return to Bloomsburg after 33 years, not for the reunion, but for the opportunity to thank someone who gave me so much.

I missed the tour of the campus that morning, but drove around on my own, entering the campus from Lightstreet Road. I said to my wife at every turn, "I don't recognize anything. This is all new."

She pointed to building after building, saying, "Surely that one was there." But the corner stones told the truth: 1968, 1970, 1998.

It was the sight of Carver Hall that brought back the memories I had been protecting all those years.

We turned and drove through town and I made an amazing discovery. For the first time, I looked at the town itself and found a charm that I was unable to appreciate in my younger years. Those buildings hadn't changed much except for fresh paint and restorations. It is a town I could proudly make my own.

I attended the reunion, secretly afraid that someone would discover that I was a "fraud." I talked with several people, found everyone friendly and not overly suspicious of my presence.

Then I finally got a chance to thank Mr. Savage for instilling in me a love of literature and serving as a model for what good teaching should be.

When I approached him, his eyes twinkled as he nodded and said, "I recognize you." I don't douht it, hut he must have remembered me from class, not from the Maroon & Gold office. I was never in it!

Alumna carries on goal of 'Image'

Students of Leslie Williams Hoal '86 sign the word 'love' as they sing "Love in Any Language."

It was her involvement with Image at BU that inspired Leslie Ann Williams Hoal '86 to continue signing to music at her church, weddings and the school where she teaches.

A member of Image for two years, Leslie carries on the goal of the organization, "to further the understanding and appreciation of manual communication by educating and entertaining both hearing and deaf persons through interpretation and communication via sign language, facial expression and body language."

Since graduation from Bloomsburg, Leslie has taught at Choconut Valley Elementary School in the Montrose Area School District. The first year she taught, she invited her Image friends to come to the school and perform.

She decided to teach her second graders a few songs in sign language, too. That year the class put on a modest show with the help of a few parents and a boom box.

Today, shows feature music directed by the music teacher, props constructed by the art department and costumes made by a small group of parents. Each year they end the show with "Love in Any Language," a musical tradition with Image.

Past shows by Leslie's class have centered on themes. The year they used a weather theme, each musical number was introduced with a forecast. When a twister was predicted, the students signed and sang "Twist and Shout."

Another year, students in the upper grades gifted program researched inventions. As one student talked about an invention, for example, the telephone, another student interpreted in sign language. Then the second graders sang "Why Haven't I Heard From You?"

One show everyone still talks about is the "The Lion King" because of the popularity of the Disney movie.

This spring Leslie's classes tried something different. They signed songs for a show about friends and family. The play, written by fifth and sixth graders, told of a young boy's attempt to fit in and how others learned a valuable lesson in acceptance.

As the second graders in Leslie's class learned signing and practiced the songs for the show, they learned the importance of accepting everyone for the special things they bring to life. Their minds were opened to friendship and diversity. When the students performed, they enthusiastically demonstrated this lesson for the entire school and the community.

Leslie says she has never had a student in her class who did not want to sign. They discuss the reason we have sign language as they learn how to use it. Leslie sees students' self-esteem soar as they realize they are learning a very special skill.

Leslie Ann Williams Hoal '86 is the mother of three children: Emily, 9; Cory, 5; and Caleb, 2. She has taken sign language courses through the University of Scranton and plans to pursue music interpretation when her children are all school age.*

Sharon K. Meyer, an administrator with 35 years of experience in higher education, has been appointed vice president for administration at Bloomsburg University.

She will oversee the university's budget, business and human resources offices, as well as the police department and physical plant.

She replaces Dr. Robert Parrish, who retired in December after 17 years of service at Bloomsburg.

Meyer formerly was vice president of operations at Golden Gate University in San Francisco from 1994 to 1999 and vice president of administration and finance at Rocky Mountain College from 1992 to 1994.

"A number of things really impress me about Sharon Meyer," said Bloomsburg President Jessica Kozloff.

"First is her reputation. She has worked for three presidents for whom I have a tremendous amount of respect. These individuals, whom I know personally, have told me in no uncertain terms that Sharon is a leader nationally in the administrative area and is one of the top financial experts in the country."

"Additionally, this is a person who has worked her way up from a young clerk in a business office to vice president for administration," she added. "Along the way, she gained the appropriate credentials while learning all facets of the administrative function. Sharon knows the territory inside and out. She clearly knows how to accomplish her goals and those of the universities she has served."

Meyer held positions at the University of Houston-Clear Lake as assistant vice president for business from 1985 to 1991, and assistant director of financial services from 1980 to 1985. She also held a number

Picturing the past

To what are these 1980s students reacting?

Why are these students at Watkins Glen in August 1967?

In the hope of stirring a few memories, the Maroon & Gold begins a new feature this issue. We will print a photo or two for alumni to ponder.

- What's happening in the photo?
- When might the photo have been taken?
- Who is pictured?
- Where might the photo have been originally published or displayed?

Bob Dunkelberger, university archivist, will supply us with pictures from the past. In some cases, he will have background information on the photos; at other times information you can supply will help complete archive records.

We also welcome photos from your personal collection.

In our July 2000 issue we will publish alumni responses to these photos along with two new oldies.

If you have any information about these photos or photos to share, contact Dor Remsen Sachetti '71, Fenstemaker Alumni House, Bloomsburg University, 400 East Second Street, Bloomsburg PA 17815 or dsachett@bloomu.edu.

Magazine gives high marks to BU

U.S. News and World Report has listed Bloomsburg University among the top public universities in the northern United States.

Bloomsburg is listed 7th among public northern universities, tied with the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth and Salisbury State and Towson universities in Maryland.

In ranking colleges and universities, U.S. News examines an institution's reputation, retention, faculty resources (including factors such as class size and faculty salary), student selectivity, financial resources, graduation rate and alumni giving.

Tune in on computer for for BU sports

Husky sports fans have more ways than ever to keep track of their favorite teams.

On the sports information web site, www.bloomu.edu/sports, fans can find updated information, including rosters, results and statistics on all 18 varsity teams.

This year fans will be able to listen to the WCNR radio broadcasts of Husky men's basketball games on the internet via Broadcast.com. To access the games, go to the main sports page and click on the Broadcast.com logo. Then you need to download a free program, Real Audio, to hear the games. The downloading and setting-up process initially takes no more than 15 minutes.

Also available to fans is the Husky Hotline. By calling 570-389-BUBU (2828), fans can get daily results from all BU sporting events.

Anyone wishing to receive a pocket schedule for each season can call the Office of Sports Information at 570-389-4413.

Women's athletics ranked #3 in USA

If you are a female athlete looking for one of the best schools in the country, then Bloomsburg University is for you, according to Sports Illustrated for Women.

The national magazine ranks Bloomsburg University third among Division II schools for women's athletics. Bloomsburg is the only Division II school east of the Mississippi River ranked in the top five and one of just two Pennsylvania schools listed by the magazine. (Penn State is ranked 11th in Division I.)

"The overall success of the women's athletic program is built on a solid philosophical base of understanding where every program is important and the quality of the experience for the student-athlete is the same in every aspect within the university," said Athletic Director Mary Gardner.

"Therefore, it has been incumbent upon the administration to hire the very best coaches to ensure this expectation is met, and obviously this has occurred. We have an outstanding coaching staff led by veteran coach Jan Hutchinson.

"Our coaches clearly understand our mission, work diligently and are solid role models. Women coach the majority of our programs, and we continually encourage the mentoring of young women interested in pursuing careers in coaching. We presently have four alumni on our coaching staff.

"At Bloomsburg, there is an atmosphere where coaches and athletes feel a part of the whole and recognize the importance of their contribution to the success of the total program," said Gardner. "It has been a rewarding experience watching the program grow and succeed over the past 11 years. There is every indication that the best is yet to come!"

To create the rankings, SI for Women considered the numbers: championships won; varsity, club and intramural opportunities; graduation rates; financial aid and fan support. The magazine also looked at facilities, sports-related curricula, traditions and attitude.

Bloomsburg features several nationally ranked teams among its nine sports offered for women. The field hockey team is four-time defending NCAA champion, the women's soccer team won the 1998 Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference championship and appeared in the 1998 NCAA championships, the women's tennis team tied for the PSAC title and made an appearance in the 1999 NCAA championships. The women's swim team finished 10th at the national championships last season, and the softball team made its NCAA-record 18th straight appearance in the national playoffs last spring.

The overall record for Bloomsburg's women's teams in 1998-1999 was an astounding 138-29-4, a winning percentage of .818. Over the last five years, the women's programs have combined for a record of 639-176-10, a winning percentage of .780.

In those five years, the Huskies have also earned 62 All-American awards and hundreds of All-PSAC honors.

Jeffrey Long has been named assistant vice president for student life at Bloomsburg University.

He replaces John Trathen '68, who retired after 31 years of service at Bloomsburg.

A 1980 Bloomsburg graduate, Long was dean of students at the College of Mount Saint Joseph in Cincinnati since 1995. Prior to that, he held a variety of student life positions at the College of Saint Rose in Albany, NY, including associate dean of students and director of residence life. He was also an assistant professor and post doctoral student at the University of Georgia at Athens.

An anthropology and sociology major at Bloomsburg, Long earned a master's degree in anthropology at the State University of New York at Albany in 1983, a master's degree in college student personnel at the College of Saint Rose in 1987 and a doctorate in counseling and student personnel services at the University of Georgia at Athens in 1993.

Long will be responsible for student health services, the counseling center and the university drug and alcohol program. In addition, he will also supervise all departments and programs connected with the Community Government Association, including the Student Recreation Center, the University Store, the Kehr Union, the office of Student Activities and the Quest program.

From basement to penthouse:

by Robert Dunkelberger
University Archivist

The archives was formerly located in the basement of Bakeless Hall.

The new Harvey A. Andruss Library officially opened in May 1998. For me, as university archivist, one aspect of the new facility is particularly important. For the first time in nearly 24 years, the University Archives, official repository for records and materials relating to the history of the school, is once again an integral part of the library building.

When the first Andruss Library was built in 1966, a room on the ground floor was designated for the archives, but it served as little more than storage for historical items. The library also held what was known as the Bloomsburg State College Collection, located in the reserve area. It included course catalogs, yearbooks and scrapbooks of newspaper clippings, but no official records.

The first step toward creating the archives was made in September 1972 when James B. Watts, former director of the library, was named archivist and special services librarian. He was to collect and organize materials relating to the history of the college, but the collections still needed a proper home.

This occurred in the fall of 1974 when two rooms in the basement of the Hartline Science Center were designated for the college archives as well as a labor and industrial history archives, which was being assembled at that time.

Historical records were solicited from offices around campus, in addition to materials from vaults in Carver and the Waller Administration Building. In addition, many records acquired before the move to Hartline were stored in Old Science Hall.

When Watts retired in February of 1978, the archives became inactive for more than a year.

Early in 1979, the archives was moved to the basement of the Bakeless Center for the Humanities and reopened under the new archivist, Roger Fromm. He had been hired in 1974 as a reference librarian and, like his predecessor, had no formal archival training, but did have a love of history and desire to preserve the school's legacy. He remained archivist until his retirement in 1995.

The new room in Bakeless was the best that could be hoped for at the time, but it was small and had large water pipes running through the ceiling — exactly the environment that should be avoided to ensure safe storage of permanently valuable materials. The archives remained in Bakeless for more than 19 years.

I came to Bloomsburg in the fall of 1996 as university archivist and coordinator of special collections. I had worked as an archivist at the University of Illinois and accepted this job primarily for the opportunity to help plan and occupy a brand-new archival facility.

During the planning of the library, it was decided that the archives' new space would consist of four areas: a reading room for patron research, an office for the archivist, a workroom for organizing materials and a large storage area containing compact shelving and a vault. The archives would cover 2735 square feet of the new library, compared to the former space in the basement of Bakeless that was only 1000 square feet.

With the additional space, both the archives and the library's special collections could now be housed together, allowing the union of these two valuable research collections.

Once the building was completed, a great deal of work went into the process of actually moving all of the material from archives and special collections materials into the new space. Detailed floor plans and layouts were created to show the exact location for furniture, equipment and the collections. The move took place over several weeks, entailed a lot of work, but in the end, was definitely worth the effort.

Although I may be biased, the archives reading room has to be one of the most visually stunning areas on campus. In addition to housing historical treasures, it is adorned by five of the seven stained glass windows from the old library. The arched Tiffany window is over the doorway; four rectangular windows made by the George W. Spence Company of Boston are paired on two of the walls. Preservation work has just been completed on the windows, which were cleaned and covered with protective glass. The Spence windows are now back lit by two six-foot fluorescent tubes, bringing out the full colors of the glass.

The Spence windows were originally acquired for old Noetling Hall just over 80 years ago to provide a studious atmosphere. They continue to do that to this day.

The reading room also holds copies of university publications over the years, including yearbooks, course catalogs, student handbooks and newspapers, alumni magazines, athletic media guides and scrapbooks. Special collections is represented by books from its extensive collection on local and regional history. The rest of the archives' collections include thousands of photographs, more than 800 films, blueprints, office records, posters, videotapes and many types of memorabilia. Three large tables and 12 chairs are available for researchers.

A big part of collecting historical items is also exhibiting them. In front of the archives, located on the third floor, are three exhibit cases for displaying the collections. Exhibits featured in the last year include the Ben Franklin Training School, the Maroon & Gold student newspaper from 1960-74 and Philippine art objects donated to the university by a graduate.

It has been more than a year and a half since the Bloomsburg University Archives moved and the new space has worked out masterfully. It is a vast improvement over the previous facility and should serve the archives and special collections unit of the Harvey A. Andruss Library for years to come.

The new archives is the showplace of the Harvey A. Andruss Library.

Preserving Tiffany treasures

A Tiffany window panel bearing the title, "Always Forward," is being restored after a faculty member found it tucked away in the basement of Bakeless Center for the Humanities last spring.

Sandi Kehoe-Forutan, geography and geosciences, reports the university is "rectifying history." When restored, the window panel will be hung in a more visible, but secure, location in the first floor lobby of Bakeless.

Presented to the university in 1970 by the Bakeless family as a memorial to Oscar H. Bakeless, 1858-1933, the Tiffany window panel was in the family's possession for 50 years. Bakeless, an 1879 graduate of the Bloomsburg Literary Institute and Normal School, taught at Bloomsburg for 30 years and was instrumental in raising funds for the larger Tiffany windows which are now in the new Andruss Library.

Last summer, professionals removed the latter treasures from the front of Andruss Library so they could be cleaned. They were then reinstalled inward four inches from the outer protective glass so air can circulate and keep the windows cooler.

Inside the library, a layer of glass was placed over the Tiffany and Spence windows above the door to the University Archives and inside the archives to give them added protection.

Peter Koch from Williamsport restored the Tiffany panel and worked on the Andruss windows project.

Fall sports highlights

By Steven Yankay

The 1999 fall sports season at Bloomsburg University ended in typical Husky fashion. The foutball team posted another strong showing, while the women's field hockey team again proved itself the hest in the nation in Division II

Football

The football team finished with a 7-4 overall record and a 4-2 inark in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Eastern Division.

Bloomsburg posted solid victories over Shippenshurg and Edinboro, hoth of whom defeated the Huskies in 1998 while playing teams such as New Haven and Millersville competitively.

Leading the way for Bloomshurg was senior receiver Matt Wilson and defensive end Justin Vent as well as sophomore quarterback Eric Miller. Wilson set a single reason record with 16 touchdown catches and had 64 total receptions for 1,345 yards. His efforts earned him PSAC first team honors.

Vent concluded his career with 50 total tackles this season, 24 solo and helped anchor the Huskies defensive squad. He was also selected as a PSAC first team honoree.

Miller passed for 2,571 yards on 171 completions in 270 attempts. He set the Bloomsburg single season record for completion percentage at 63.3% while tossing 25 touchdowns.

The Huskies ended their seasun with a 65-16 rout of Edinhoro in which Wilson caught three touchdown passes.

Danny Hale

Sports

During the course of the season, Coach Danny Hale became Bloomsburg's winningest football coach with 52 victories.

Field hockey

In field hockey, the Huskies defeated Bentley College, 2-0, to capture an unprecedented fourth consecutive NCAA Division II title. Bloomsburg finished the season a perfect 19-0 and also won their 10th PSAC title with a 2-0 win over Lock Haven.

Senior Jess Kircher was named the PSAC Athlete of the Year for the second consecutive season after scoring seven goals and adding a team-high 13 assists. She was the Honda Award nominee of the Division II Collegiate Woman of the Year honor for her efforts this season.

Classmate Bridgett Heckman was named a PSAC first team selection after leading the Huskies in scoring with 18 goals. Heckman ended her career as a four time national champion.

Women's tennis

The women's tennis team continued their strong play in the PSAC by finishing the season with a 9-1 record despite sharing the PSAC championship for the second consecutive season.

Senior Danielle Faretta set the Bloomsburg career record for victories with a record of 90-17 over four years. She was 18-4 in her final campaign and ended her career as a two-time PSAC flight one singles champion.

Freshman Erin Bartsch was named the PSAC Rookie of the Year after capturing the flight three PSAC singles title. She teamed with Faretta to win the flight one doubles title, while posting an overall record of 16-2 in singles.

Heather Miller, Katie Kochera and Jen Esposito also won PSAC singles titles at flight two, four and five, respectively.

Women's soccer

In women's soccer, the Huskies made an appearance in the PSAC playoffs for the second consecutive season after finishing with a 15-6 overall record and a 7-3 mark in the PSAC.

Junior Christine Krebs set the all-time goal scoring record at Bloomsburg with 39 total goals. She is now just one point shy of becoming the school's all-time points leader (92 points).

Krebs, Alea Balthaser and Liz Donnelly were each named to the Northeast Region Division II team by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America and Addidas.

Balthaser had a team-high 12 assists and scored 18 goals after winning the PSAC Athlete and Rookie of the Year honors in 1998.

Donnelly helped anchor a Bloomsburg defense that allowed only 23 goals and posted eight shutouts.

Men's soccer

Also earning a spot in the PSAC playoffs was the men's soccer team. Bloomsburg posted a 7-12 overall record a 4-4 PSAC mark in head coach Paul Payne's inaugural season.

Senior Cody Clabaugh and juniors Alex Sisakovic and Lee Senior each were named to the PSAC second team. Clabaugh finished his career with 11 career goals.

PRIDE program helps inner-city youths

Support from organizations like the Whitaker Foundation, AMP Inc., the Greater Harrisburg Foundation, the Grumbacher Foundation and the Susquehanna Employment and Training Corporation (SETCO) helped make Bloomsburg University's PRIDE program possible in 1999.

The acronym, PRIDE, stands for Personal Responsibility in Developing Excellence. Instituted in 1992, the program promotes the attainment of post-secondary education and training for low-income, inner-city Harrisburg youths, who too often fail to complete high school.

The program advocates education as a priority and inspires students to become passionate about learning through a variety of classroom exercises as well as cultural activities and field trips.

The State System of Higher Education, Bloomsburg University and Harrisburg-area businesses and industries are collaborative partners in the program.

"This is an effective way to get low-income students thinking about going to college," says Adrianne Flack, Bloomsburg's director of pre-collegiate programs.

"We work with students during their formative years to change attitudes about education. Some of the participants never leave their own neighborhoods; we show them that there are opportunities outside their communities."

The PRIDE program consists of two components: a residential summer program and a Saturday program that occurs throughout the academic year.

With the assistance of university staff member Iluminada Toledo, former Harrisburg teacher Jack Anderson and 29 BU students, the PRIDE program served more than 100 students during the last academic year.

Outcomes of the program are tangible, with three former PRIDE participants now enrolled as freshmen at the university.

"Not only do we serve the PRIDE program students, but it also helps market the university," says Flack. "We want them to consider going to college, but it's even better if they choose Bloomsburg."

BU students benefit from the PRIDE program as well because the Saturday program offers a training opportunity to many education majors.

Matt Hutchinson '95 was recently named coordinator of development services at Bloomsburg University.

He previously served as a program associate for the Williamsport-Lycoming Foundation, where his duties included grantmaking and community outreach activities.

Other previous experience included working in the public relations department of the Williamsport Crosscutters professional baseball team.

At Bloomsburg, he will provide support for special fundraising appeals, donor stewardship and grant-related activities.

Husky golf outings benefit athletics

The BU Husky Club raised more than $13,000 during 1999 through five golf outings which benefited the university's general athletic scholarships. The events, held from April to October, brought a total of 385 alumni and friends to the golf courses.

Tournaments were held at Mill Race Golf Resort, Benton; Edgewood-in-the-Pines, Drums; Skippack Golf Course, Skippack; Cool Creek Country Club, Wrightsville; and Frosty Valley Country Club, Danville.

The following toumaments are planned for 2000:

April 14 – Willow Run Golf Course, Briar Creek

May 19 – Wilkes-Barre Municipal Golf Course

June 3 -- John Devlin Memorial

June 10 -- Wrestling

June 23 – Philadelphia area

September 15 – Heritage Hills, York

October 7 -- Baseball

October 12 – Frosty Valley Country Club, Danville

If you would like to receive brochures about any of these toumaments, please contact the Alumni Office at alunı@blooınu.edu or 800-526-0254.

Raffle winners

Athletic teams scored big when $14,872 was raised from the Husky Club raffle (no purchase required). Proceeds benefited the university's general athletic fund.

Winners of the 1999 raffle were Young Nguyen, Carlisle, a parent of a BU football player, $1,000; Traci Leitzel, Richfield, $500; and Annetta Kramer, Sunbury, $250.

"What's the homework du jour?"

Veterans Column

By Dale A. Krothe '60
Chair of Alumni Veterans Committee

The BU Alumni Veterans Committee experienced the loss of two members in the past 13 months: Edward Berlin on December 10, 1998, and Dr. Curtis R. English on November 13, 1999. They will be sorely missed. A $200 donation to the Veterans Scholarship Fund will be made in their names by members of the committee.

The latest recipient of the $1,000 Veterans Memorial Scholarship was Jaclyn Janowicz, a senior N-K-3 elementary major from Moscow

The World War II Registry of Remembrance has been created to honor individual Americans who participated in the war effort. The registry will be on public display in Washington, DC. Anyone who served in the armed services and any civilian who helped on the home front are eligible. For more information, contact the WWII Memorial Fund, American Battle Monuments Commission, PO Box 96766, Washington, DC 20090-6766.

"Reach Out and Touch An American Soldier" serving in Kosovo via the American Red Cross. Care packages, cards and letters will make you a patriotic supporter of the "Adopt-a-Platoon Soldier Support Effort." A soldier will be specifically assigned to you.

Send any items or letters to: American Red Cross, Assistant Station Manager Jerry Cervantes, AAP Soldier Support Effort, Task Force Falcon, Camp Monteith, Kosovo or send to Camp Rondsteel, APO/AE, 09340-0001.

In order to provide a self-sustaining $1,000 Veterans Memorial Scholarship, a goal of $15,000 was set for our fundraiser in the spring of 1998. A total of $9,000 has been raised to date for this worthwhile project. We could use your help to reach our goal by May 2000. Any donation of $50 or more to the BU annual fund can be designated to this scholarship. Or you may use the form on this page to make your contribution now.

Contact the Alumni Office if more information is needed on any of the above projects. Hope your new year will be healthy and prosperous. See you on Alumni Day on May 6.

More aid for BU students

Bloomsburg University and its students are the recipients of several new scholarships, and some previously established scholarship funds will be making their first distributions during the 2000/01 academic year.

Mildred Quick Muller Business Scholarship. Given by Mildred Quick Muller, a member of the first class to graduate from Bloomsburg's business education program in 1934, this scholarship will benefit incoming College of Business students.

Charlotte Hess Memorial Scholarship and the William J. Hess, Jr. Memorial Scholarship. Given by the Hess family in Bloomsburg, these awards are in memory of Charlotte Hess, professor of education and her husband Bill, who owned Hess' Tavern. One scholarship provides support to a student majoring in early education, elementary education or dual certification; the other will benefit a current Bloomsburg University baseball player.

Chang Shub and Myung Ja Roh Bloomsburg University Student Scholarship. Established by a former faculty member from the department of sociology and social welfare, this scholarship provides funds for students to attend the Global Awareness Society International meetings. The first distribution of funds will take place this year for the society's summer meeting in New York City.

Five Friends Scholarship. Given by family and friends in memory of Bloomsburg University students Kyle Barton, Deborah Keeler, Derek Mooney, James Palmer and Joseph Selena, who died in a tragic house fire in October

Scholarships

1994, this fund will benefit an upper-class student who has encountered an unexpected or unusual situation causing a financial hardship.

Brian Van Horn Memorial Scholarship
Family and friends have remembered the life of Brian Van Horn, who died in an automobile accident in 1989 shortly before entering Bloomsburg as a freshman. Funds from this scholarship will benefit an incoming freshman from Carbon, Luzurne or Schuylkill Counties.

For more information on these scholarships, their selection criteria or how to establish a scholarship in your name or the name of a loved one, please contact the Bloomsburg University Development Center at (570) 389-4128 or foun@bloomu.edu

October 28	Homecoming

University aims for $11 million goal

Bloomsburg University officially kicked off its first-ever comprehensive campaign, New Challenges, New Opportunities: The Campaign for Bloomsburg University, during homecoming festivities on October 9, 1999.

The kickoff event, which was attended by more than 250 people, marked the announcement of an $11 million campaign that seeks to raise funds for several university priorities. Those priorities include renovating the former library into a student services center, creating opportunities for excellence, increasing Bloomsburg University's Annual Fund and building scholarship opportunites.

Transforming the old library into a student services center, one of the main priorities of the campaign, will enable several student-oriented offices that are currently scattered around campus to be housed under one roof. Increased convenience, accessibility and student satisfaction are the goals of this renovation project.

The following offices will be located in the new student services center upon its completion in January 2001: admissions, financial aid, internships, registrar, developmental instruction, accommodative services, information center, counseling center, drug and alcohol wellness network (DAWN), SOLVE, academic advisement, career development, international education, pre-collegiate programs, ROTC, student support services and Upward Bound.

The opportunities for excellence portion of the campaign focuses on building and expanding academic endowment levels and their programs, as well as scholarships for deserving students.

Additionally, Bloomsburg's annual fund allows the university to meet its most pressing needs in a wide variety of areas, including Alumni Association activities, faculty-student research, professional growth for faculty and special programs and speakers on campus.

Alumni, parents, friends and businesses are currently being contacted to support this important campaign in the university's history. Gifts can be conveniently pledged over a number of years and will be recognized on the donor recognition wall in the main entrance of the student services center.

For more details on making a contribution, or recognition levels, please contact the Bloomsburg University Development Center at 570-389-4128 or by email at foun@bloomu.edu.

Parents campaign tops $101,000

The recently completed Bloomsburg University Parent Phonathon for 1999 was a huge success, raising $101,508 in pledges.

Forty university students, who served as callers, helped increase the total by $19,966 over last year's mark.

Eileen M. Evert, coordinator of the annual fund, was assisted by Stacie Frutchey '00 and Brooke Weidner '00, student supervisors.

Funds raised during the campaign will help support the new student services center, which is a major focus of the university's first comprehensive campaign: New Challenges, New Opportunities. The new center will provide busy students with more convenient and easier access to the many educational and personal services available to them on campus.

"The biggest factor contributing to the success of this year's parent phonathon was the professionalism and enthusiasm of our student callers," Evert said. "The parents really enjoyed speaking with the students about the new student services center and their experiences at the university."

"The parent phonathon is so important, not only because of the donations it brings in, but also because it gives parents the opportunity to speak one-on-one with our student callers," said Frutchey. "It is beneficial for parents to ask questions and for us to get the message out about all the improvements we are seeing at BU."

"The interaction between students and parents is very important," Weidner added. "The parent phonathon helped this interaction and got parents involved with Bloomsburg. The parent participation was wonderful and greatly helps us make improvements to our university."

Of the many calls that were completed, 1,150 parents made pledges – an increase of 118 over 1998.

"We're very pleased with the number of parents who helped us surpass our goal," Evert said. "Whether the pledge was $5 or $1500, every dollar will make a difference."

Eileen M. Evert has been named coordinator of the annual fund at Bloomsburg University.

A 1994 graduate of McCann School of Business and a 1999 graduate of Alvernia College, Eileen was previously employed by the Penn State Geisinger Health System Foundation for five years.

At Geisinger, she coordinated the annual Children's Miracle Network Telethon.

In her new role at Bloomsburg, Eileen will provide support for the annual fund and year-end appeals, parent and alumni phonathons and Husky Club fundraising activities.

Student wins free tuition for semester

A semester of free tuition was won by Lindsey Hagenbuch, a senior accounting major from Watsontown, in the Husky Club 1999 Tuition Raffle. The prize is valued at $1,850 and will be applied toward her 2000 spring semester costs.

A profit of more than $19,000 will support the university's general athletic scholarship fund.

Charles J. Daly '52
Distinguished Service Award

Charles J. Daly '52 received a Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his professional coaching success as well as his ambassadorship to the university.

One of the university's most recognized alumni, Chuck has said that the teaching skills he learned at Bloomsburg have always been an essential part of his coaching.

Chuck attended Kane High School in western Pennsylvania, where C. Stuart Edwards guided him as a three-year varsity player. Coach Edwards appreciated Chuck's commitment to practice and analysis of the game. Chuck was a team leader by his own example.

After high school Chuck headed for St. Bonaventure in New York but after one year, transferred to Bloomsburg State College. Chuck's devotion to basketball continued; he became Bloomsburg's leading scorer in his junior and senior years.

As a secondary education major Chuck prepared to teach in three disciplines: speech correction, English and social studies. He said he always knew he wanted to coach basketball so he took speech to help him communicate better with his players.

As an undergraduate, Chuck was a member of the track team, Varsity Club, sports staff of the Maroon and Gold and Sigma Alpha Eta, the professional speech and hearing fraternity.

Chuck graduated in 1952. After two years in the army he became head coach at Punxsutawney High School. While teaching and coaching he earned a masters degree in educational administration at Penn State University.

In 1963 Chuck wrote a letter to Duke University telling them "they needed him." He was named assistant coach and stayed six years. He then accepted an offer as head coach at Boston College. Two years later, in 1971, he became the head coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

His professional coaching began in 1977 when he became assistant coach for the Philadelphia 76ers. In 1981 he accepted a job with the floundering Cleveland Cavaliers. In the fall of 1982 Chuck went back to Philadelphia as a TV commentator.

The Detroit Pistons approached Chuck in 1983. The winning began and in 1989 and 1990 he lead the team to back-to-back titles – a feat only three other NBA coaches can claim. Chuck, known widely for his ability to relate to professional athletes and inspire their greatest effort, modestly claims he has been fortunate to work with players who can win a championship.

In 1992 he coached the basketball "Dream Team" to an Olympic gold medal in Barcelona. This was the first year professionals were allowed in the Olympics and the U.S. dominated the competition.

Chuck stayed with Detroit three more years, went with the New Jersey Nets for two years and retired in 1994. He returned to coaching in 1997 for two seasons with the Orlando Magic.

Bloomsburg University has honored Chuck on two previous occasions. In 1983 he was inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame. Chuck Daly Way, the street along the east side of Centennial Gymnasium, was named in his honor in 1993.

Chuck and his wife, Terry Cierlitsky Daly '50, live in Tequesta, FL, and West Bloomfield, MI. They are the parents of daughter, Cydney.

Hugh M. Dempsey '70
Distinguished Service Award

Hugh M. Dempsey '70 received a Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his professional accomplishments and civic contributions as well as his support of Bloomsburg University.

After graduation from Bloomsburg State College in 1970, Hugh taught elementary school in the Wyoming Area School District. In 1972 he was appointed elementary principal. He earned his masters in education from Bloomsburg in 1975.

He continued his professional studies earning a doctorate in early childhood education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania in 1979. He taught early child development there from 1975 to 1978.

Hugh next served as major donor officer and director of institutional research at Saint Vincent College, 1978-1986. He also became founding executive director of Saint Vincent College Prevention Projects, earning national recognition for this early intervention project serving the 17 school districts in Westmoreland County.

Hugh served as president and chief executive officer of the Eye & Ear Institute of Pittsburgh from 1986 to 1992. During his tenure, the institute grew from an operation with six employees and no active research to a program with 100 employees and extensive research funded by more than $3 million in government and private support.

From 1992 to 1997, Hugh was owner and president of The Dempsey Group, Inc., a holding company comprised of a management consulting firm specializing in organizational development and

Frick gets national honor

Bloomsburg's Kathy Frick '90 was named Division II Coach of the Year for 2000 by the Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Coaching Association.

Kathy, in her second season with the Huskies, guided the team to a 10-3 record and the championship of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference.

It was just the second PSAC lacrosse championship in Bloomshurg history. The first was in 1991.

Kathy began her coaching career at Roanoke College as an assistant lacrosse coach, helping the team reach the NCAA Division III semifinals.

She later was an assistant field hockey and lacrosse coach at Colgate and head coach in both sports at Goucher College.

Distinguished Service Award

Robert J. Gibble '68 received a Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his successful career in the accounting field and his service to Bloomsburg University.

A native of Reading, Bob earned a B.S. in accounting from Bloomsburg State College in 1968. While at Bloomsburg he lettered all four years in varsity baseball. He was captain his senior year and recipient of the Shuman Sportsmanship Award. Bob was a member of the Sigma Iota Omega fraternity. He was included in Who's Who in American Colleges & Universities.

Upon graduation from Bloomsburg, Bob played professional baseball in Califomia for the Oakland Athletics, 1968-69.

In 1969 he took a position with an accounting firm, Ernst & Young (formerly Ernst & Whinney), in Reading. Working there for ten years, he attained the position of manager of audit services.

Bob also served in the United States Marine Corps Reserve based in Reading from 1969 to 1975.

Bob is currently president and managing partner of Beard & Company, Inc., Certified Public Accountants in Reading. He is also the head of the firm's mergers, acquisitions and financing department. He has been with the firm since 1979.

He has more than 31 years of experience in accounting and business consulting, including international accounting. Having worked with both privately and publicly held companies of all sizes, he has extensive experience in the financial audit process, mergers and acquisitions as well as financing including initial public offerings and private placement. As president and managing partner of the firm, Bob has responsibility for the day to day operations of the firm as well as implementing strategies and policies as set forth by the board of directors.

He is a member of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants and has served as its Reading chapter president. He is also a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Bob has served as president of the Berks County Mental Health Association and a director on the Berks County Chamber of Commerce. He currently serves as a director of the Reading Hospital and Medical Center.

His service to Bloomsburg University and the State System is considerable. He currently serves on the university Council of Trustees and as a member of the College of Business Advisory Board.

He also serves as treasurer and board member of the Fund for the Advancement of the State System of Higher Education as well as a member of its Planning Commission. He is a member of the President's Advisory Board of Kutztown University.

In 1994, Bob was inducted into Bloomsburg University's Athletie Hall of Fame.

Bob and his wife, Georgeann, have been married 32 years. Their son, Brett A. Gibble '93, is married to Jodi Mull Gibble '93.

John J. Trathen '68
Distinguished Service Award

John J. Trathen '68 received a Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his 31 years of service to the university as well as his 20 years of service as Alumni Association treasurer.

In June 1999, John retired as director of student activities at Bloomsburg University after 31 years of service. His work, punctuated by his positive leadership style and teasing sense of humor, energized students, staff and the university—few people at BU have been known by so many. In his retirement, John continues his active role, particularly his work with the Alumni Association.

A native of Hazleton, John came to Bloomsburg in 1965 to attend school fulltime and earn a degree in business education. After high school, he had worked in banking and accounting while taking courses at Wilkes University. He also served in the U.S. Army Reserve from 1961 to 1965 including active duty during the Berlin Crisis.

The summer before his graduation from Bloomsburg, John was asked to train as college comptroller by Horace Williams who planned to retire in a year. John learned the job from the ground up, his hands-on experience helping him learn every aspect of the office of student activities. Up through the 1960s, student activities meant what was happening in and around Husky Lounge. Today, it involves the operation of Kehr Union, the student recreation center, the health center, intramurals and Quest: Outdoor Experiential Learning.

John served as advisor to the community Government Association (CGA) and a number of other student organizations.

He also played a sigtuficant part in several major building projects during his tenure. In 1973, the Kehr Union was built and its remodeling in 1993 included an extensive addition. The student recreation center was completed in 1995. Most recently intramural fields on the upper campus were constructed.

In 1984, he added to his professional credentials by earning a doctorate in higher education/public administration at Penn State.

In 1999, John was awarded the Suzanne S. Brown Distinguished Service Award by the State System of Higher Education. In the same year he received both the CGA Award for Exemplary Service and the Extraordinary Advisor Award.

Earlier this year John was honored with the National Association of College Auxiliary Services (NACAS) Silver Torch award.

Most recently, the BU Council of Trustees recognized John's service to the university with a resolution commending him for his leadership.

In addition to filling four interim administrative posts, John has chaired and worked on many university projects and committees through the years. Most noteworthy may be his work with the United Way and the bloodmobile drive.

He has authored numerous articles for professional publications and has acted as consultant to other universities in the State System.

John has served as treasurer of the BU Alumni Association since 1980 and was chairman of the Annual Fund Campaign in 1998.

His service is by no means limited to the university. John is active in a number of community organizations including the Red Cross and Columbia/Montour Area Agency on Aging. He is very active in the Catawissa United Methodist Church and is a certified lay speaker.

John's wife, Peg, is fiscal assistant in the university's development office. They are the

James E. Holland '78
Young Alumnus of the Year

James E. Holland '78 was named Young Alumnus of the Year in recognition of his successful career in public accounting and for his support of Bloomsburg University.

Jim received his B.S. in business administration/ accounting from Bloomsburg State College in 1978. He has worked in public accounting since graduation. While at Bloomsburg, he was a member of the table tennis team.

He began his career in public accounting with Boyers & Ritter. After five years he continued his experience with Padden & Associates where he became partner in 1988. In 1995, he established his own accounting firm in Shiremanstown.

Jim has extensive experience in tax planning, preparation and consulting for small business. He has worked with manufacturing concerns, retailers, wholesalers, contractors and non-profit organizations. He is also well-versed in tax planning for individuals.

In recent years he has been requested to testify as an expert witness in bankruptcy, partner disputes and workers compensation matters.

Jim is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants (PICPA) and Certified Fraud Examiners (CFE). He is a member of the Mechanicsburg Club and volunteers his services annually as a speaker to the senior citizens groups at Members First Federal Credit Union. He has been a speaker at meetings and seminars for a number of credit union associations.

Jim is a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Carlisle and plays on its basketball team.

He is a native of Mechanicsburg, graduating from Cumberland Valley High School in 1974.

He is married to the former Teresa Creveling, a Bloomsburg native. They have three children: Taylor, 12, Grant, 10, and Emily 8.

Harold J. Bailey
Honorary Alumnus

Harold J. Bailey was named Honorary Alumnus in recognition of his leadership in developing the Institute for Interactive Technology (IIT), which has brought national and international recognition to Bloomsburg University.

Hank retired from Bloomsburg University in 1997 as director of IIT and professor of the master of science in instructional technology program, a position he held since 1985. Previously he was coordinator of the master of education program in mathematics education (1977-1982) and the undergraduate computer and information science program (1977-81). He came to Bloomsburg in 1969 as professor of mathematics and computer science.

Hank provided the leadership for the development of Bloomsburg University's institute of Interactive Technologies, established to assist faculty with the use of technology to improve classroom teaching and learning and provide practical experience for graduate students in the master of science program in instructional technology. During his tenure he initiated and managed progressive technology-based instructional programs for university and commercial use as well as assisted faculty with the design and production of interactive multimedia projects. He was instrumental in securing more than $1 million in grants for the program.

Today, Hank is president of Bailey Interactive, Inc., a company he started in 1989. Bailey Interactive develops custom and proprietary interactive technology-based solutions for education and training.

Hank is a frequent speaker at national and international professional conferences and has published numerous articles on topics in instructional technology. He regularly conducts workshops on interactive technologies and serves as a consultant in a variety of capacities.

He serves on the board of directors for the Bloomsburg University Foundation and is an active member of the Society for Applied Learning Technology and the American Society for Training & Development.

A native of New Jersey, Hank earned a B.S. in mathematics from Albright College in 1962. He continued his professional studies at Penn State earning a masters in mathematics education in 1964 and a doctorate in curriculum and instruction in 1974.

Hank taught math at Metuchen High School in Metuchen, NJ, (1963-69) where he also chaired the math department for three years. He also served as math instructor at Middlesex County College (1968-69).

Hank and his wife, Linda, live in Bloomsburg. They have two grown children, Kimberly Gilbert of Raleigh, NC, and Keith Bailey of State College. They are grandparents of Lauren, 2 ½.

Picturing the Past

Could these co-eds be celebrating a special occasion with a meal on Long Porch, Old Waller Hall?

Who are these students and what are they doing on Main Street in Bloomsburg?

In the hope of stirring a few memories, the Maroon & Gold publishes its second set of old photos for alumni to ponder.

- What's happening in these photos?
- When might the photos have been taken?
- Who is pictured?
- Where might the photo have been originally published or displayed?

Bob Dunkelberger, university archivist, will supply us with pictures from the past. In some cases, he will supply some background information about the photo. At other times, information you can supply will help complete archive records.

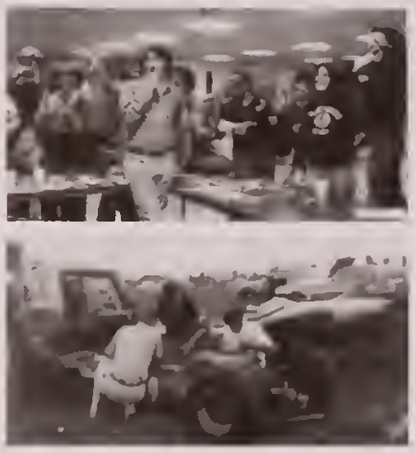
We also welcome photos from your personal collection.

In our January 2001 issue, we will publish alumni responses to the photos here, along with two new oldies.

Here's what alumni said about the photos in the January 2000 issue:

♦ Coleen Earl Klepenko '80 said she thinks that the students at the table are reacting to the spinning of a roulette wheel during a Casino Night on campus.

♦ There were no guesses as to what was happening in the August 1967 Watkins Glen photo.



Photos from the January 2000 Maroon & Gold.

If you have information about these photos or photos to share, contact Dor Sachetti '71, Fenstemaker Alumni House, Bloomsburg University, 400 East Second Street Bloomsburg PA 17815 or dsachett@bloomu.edu.

The Cough by Harry Humes '64

Our young father walked Ash Alley whistling "Rescue the Perishing," but already he carried mine tunnels home in his black-streaked breath. It was like first sleet against an attic window. My mother would look at him, her lips a line of impatience and fear. "Your lungs will soon be stone," she said. "It's good money, Dorse. It's the only money." Some of the men who stopped at our house to see my father had tongues like fish that stuck out between words. Gray-faced, shoulders bony, they all seemed about to cave in. My mother would leave the room, her lips thinner than ever, but the cough followed her across the linoleum, down cellar steps, hunkered close when she planted sage and primrose. The cough was like a child. It was always hungry. It demanded attention. It woke us up at odd times and sat in the good chair by the window. In winter, it trailed behind my father like a peacock feather on a woman's hat. One summer he told us we were on a planet going nowhere fast. He made a model he called an orrery, and showed us how the heavens worked. The center was bright and hung there like one of my mother's peony blossoms. "That there's what pushes it," he said. "And that's what made the coal." We looked at him and nodded, but we had our own ideas about what made it go. We could hear it behind the least little thing.

Maurer surfs the digital edge

Allan D. Maurer '72 was feature editor for the Maroon & Gold, the student newspaper, in 1969-70. Here, in his own words, is an update on his life, along with his thoughts on an online line of work (sic).

After years of freelance writing for magazines from Omni to Playboy to Modern Maturity (highest circulation magazine in the world at about 20 million), I somehow got into the publications startup business.

First, I started two business monthly tabloids, then a series of city magazines. The last, Charlotte's Best (Charlotte NC), had great promise but the era of money-making, general-interest magazines is coming to an end. They are costly to produce and you have to give them away to ensure advertisers a result.

It was a lot of fun. I wrote about art, food, restaurants, films and blues music in addition to writing features. I ate well. I got to watch Carolina Panther's NFL games from the press box high above the stadium, met all the players. I interviewed Hugh McColl of Bank America among other top dawgs of the region. But I didn't make much money.

When I saw the old world of print publications giving way to the Internet, I gave up my interest in Charlotte's Best – literally just walked away from it – and retrained myself at online writing. That took about a year. I wrote for Charlotte Magazine, Creative Loafing and two chapters in the book The Writer's Complete Fantasy Reference (Writer's Digest) on magic and witchcraft, neither of which I practice but I'm a wizard at research.

As I gained Internet skill, I began applying for online writing jobs. Dbusiness.com gave me a shot at its grueling, wire-service-like pace. I wrote five stories a day on business and technology companies, focusing largely on the so-called "new economy" of the Internet, information technology, biotechnology and venture financed start-ups of every stripe.

They hired me fulltime after two weeks and I wrote 700 stories in the first eight months. It's the hardest work I've ever done but also the most fun.

I hear from my readers. This can be humbling, because I hear about every mistake I make, but it also means I know I'm being read. People who are among this region's movers and shakers constantly tell me how much they use what I write, how important it is to them. That's motivating. It also pays better than any other journalism job I've had. I'm now paying more in weekly taxes than I was making doing the magazine.

Some National Public Radio (NPR) pundit said that financial and technology writers today are like the journalists who wrote about rock in the 60s. Business, the market, entrepreneurship, that's the leading edge of popular culture at the moment, and I always did love surfing that rolling, thunderous leading edge.

It's made me something of a celebrity in the Research Triangle of North Carolina, where I now live in a two-loft apartment with my black and white cat, Bobby Lee. I have a wall-sized window that looks out on tree-canopied Duke Street and the Durham School of the Arts. There are five bookstores within walking distance. The Gothic east campus of Duke University is just up the street and the renovated warehouse district is very cool, arty, bohemian. I love it. If you want to see where I live, rent the movie Bull Durham. When the camera pans over the ballpark fence, behind the fire tower, you'll see the unpretentious brick rectangle of the Burlington Warehouse. That's the place.

Swing dancing is popular here, and because I had the good fortune to date an Arthur Murray teacher ($60,000 in free dance lessons), I can still do a bit of hooling and do.

In addition to writing daily for dbusiness.com, I also work for the company's profitable and highly regarded magazine, digital south.

Not long ago I turned down a job offer from another national magazine because my company instantly exceeded their offer, resulting in a raise only slightly less than my entire teaching salary in 1973.

I've learned quite a bit about this new economy, from the difference between servers, routers and switches to the ins and outs of telecom lingo and what the DNA plumbers of biotech are up to (saving my aging bacon, I hope). I learn quite a few new things every day and do my best to tell my readers about them.

If you're in a city with dbusiness.com and have an interest in emerging companies, entrepreneurs, venture capital or small capital public companies, come by and see us. Meanwhile, catch ya in Catawissa, baby.

DirectStuff.com Inc., a company developed by Jason Wolfe '92, recently announced the sale of two of its web sites, MyCoupons.com and DirectCoupons.com, for a two-year cash and marketing alliance valued at $23 million. Save.com, a California-based company plans to buy the online coupon sites from Jason's company, based in the Pittsburgh suburb of Green Tree.

Save.com and MyCoupons.com both feature coupons like those found in the Sunday newspaper inserts. Consumers just download, print and use them.

MyCoupons.com attracts 15 million visits each month and projects growth to 30 million by the end of 2000. The site hosts free web-based email, shopping forums, prizes, sales and specials, online coupons, horoscopes, polls and more.

DirectCoupons.com, the email newsletter, claims 450,000 subscribers.

Jason earned a bachelor's degree in business from Bloomsburg University in 1992.

In 1994, he founded a company that packaged coupons in rental videos called Advertising Concepts Inc.

That year Jason was hurt in a car accident and kept himself busy with a computer during his recovery from spinal surgery. He taught himself how to build web sites, combining it with his interest in coupons.

In 1995, his new company, DirectStuff.com, began devoting itself solely to Internet related development, target market distribution methods, web site development and Internet marketing. It started one of the first coupon sites and filed patents on electronic delivery mechanisms.

From one employee, one dial-up on a 14.4 modem, one 486 computer and about $50, DirectStuff.com has grown to a multi-million-dollar firm with a staff of 22.

As part of the marketing alliance with Save.com, Direct.Stuff.com will continue to manage the two sites, MyCoupons.com and DirectCoupons.com, as well as Save.com's web site.

Jason, in addition to managing all three sites, will continue to build the DirectStuff brand which includes its DirectLeads.com advertising network, its DirectStuff.com publications network and its DirectCertificates.com. DirectCertificates.com is a gift certificate network with more than 100 merchant partners such as Sunglass Hut, Red Lobster, Blockbuster and The Sharper Image.

When contacted recently, Jason commented, "As you can see it does not require an Ivy League degree to be successful in business. Hard work, vision and intellect, along with some basic foundations will get you far. I learned a great deal from my professors at Bloomsburg as well as my social life there."

Robin L. Wolfinger '98 and Donald P. Rochow were married on May 20, 2000, in Lancaster.

Robin is a microbiologist at Lancaster Laboratories. They reside in Lancaster.

Christine R. Young '98 and Anthony L. Karpovich IV were married in Clarks Green on November 20, 1999.

Christine, who is pursuing a master's degree at the University of North Florida in Jacksonville, is a human resource manager for Steinmart at its corporate headquarters in Jacksonville.

Anthony, who is also pursuing a master's degree at UNF, is an investigator for the State of Florida Department of Children and Family Services.

They reside in Jacksonville.

Melinda Altadonna '99 will coach the women's lacrosse team at Beaver College this fall.

Lori Aschettino '99 is a software trainer and technical support representative for CRS Inc., Williamsport.

Dale Behm '99, a lieutenant in the Marine Corps, will attend flight school in Florida.

It was at Bloomsburg that he developed an interest in flying and decided to pursue a career as a pilot.

He was part of a two-man team that designed a life-size replica of an airplane that was built and donated to the Bloomsburg Children's Museum last summer.

Chris Bracikowski, the physics professor who coordinated the project, said he was impressed with Dale's work.

"It was so detailed and so well thought out," he said. "He did a lot of research on his own, a lot more than I anticipated a student doing."

Bracikowski said he admires Dale's ability to set goals and achieve them. He considers him one of the most dedicated students he has taught.

Alumni earn press awards

Six alumni, all reporters and editors at the Press Enterprise newspaper in Bloomsburg, were honored recently by two Pennsylvania press organizations. Awards were presented by Associated Press Managing Editors (APME) and Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association (PNPA).

Michael Lester '95, along with five other reporters, received a first place APME award for enterprise reporting for an under-cover investigation of the off-campus party scene.

Several reporters and editors were recipients of PNPA Keystone Press Awards.

Patrick Lester '95 and Jim Sachetti '73, along with Leon Bogdan and Susan Schwartz, received a first place award for spot news reporting for front-page coverage of a local murder.

Michael Lester '95, received a first place award for news beat reporting for his stories on Geisinger Medical Center in Danville as well as an in-depth look at the troubled financial history of several county commissioner candidates.

Jim Sachetti '73, editor, received a first place award for column writing.

Chris Krepich '97, along with Susan Schwartz, received a second place award for ongoing news coverage for stories on the closing of the Berwick Hotel and the eviction of 40 tenants.

Hank Domin '96, sports editor, received a second place award for graphic/photo illustration for the cover of the 1999 football preview edition, which featured a full-color cartoon of local coaches hoping to guide their teams to the state playoffs.

Lori Getty '82, night news editor, received an honorable mention for headline writing.

Jim, Pat, Mike, Chris and Hank all started working for the Press Enterprise while students at the university.

Jeanne Bucher, administrative assistant in Community Activities, retired after 29 years of service. Known to many—students as well as staff—Jeanne says, "I've done everything there but shine shoes!"

Jeanne started at Bloomsburg in 1971, hired to help with the "book rush" at the beginning of semesters. From there she worked in the student bank located in the tunnel between Old Waller and what's now the University Store. She then moved with the bank and Community Activities into the new Kehr Union. Many would recognize her as the person who sold them their tickets for athletic events.

From part-time to full-time, all in all she's worked with five comptrollers, even filling in as acting comptroller once herself.

Jeanne says she feels like a millionaire because of all the friends she's made on campus over the years.

At the moment, Jeanne is babysitting her two grandchildren. When her husband, Tom, retires they plan to do the traveling they've been putting off all these years. You'll find 'em out West somewhere!

Civilian- Military Relations Symposium

Eileen Albertson Chapman '67

On May 5, your Alumni Association sponsored a Civilian-Military Relations Symposium. Six talented speakers presented viewpoints on our national security and defense positions during the full-day seminar.

Professor Don Zillman from the University of Maine traced the development of the citizen-soldier from Revolutionary times to the all-volunteer force of today. He also chronicled the public's relationship to those forces through the years.

Scott Silliman, executive director of the Center for Law, Ethics and National Security at Duke University, gave a detailed analysis of the impact of international law and the rules of engagement on the use of force by the military.

John Hathaway, from the office of the Directorate of Military Support for Civilian Authorities in the Department of Defense, described the assistance the department gives to civilian authorities in cases of mass emergency. He briefed the audience on steps taken to prevent the use of weapons of mass destruction.

The Adjutant General of Pennsylvania, Major General William Lynch, spoke about the Pennsylvania Army and Air National Guard. He explained how they have become a significant part of the integrated force of our national defense.

Major General Robert McIntosh, assistant to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for Reserve Matters, followed with a detailed presentation on the increasing daily use of Reserves in our national security.

The Marines were represented by Colonel Kevin Winter, deputy staff judge advocate to the Commandant of the Marine Corps and former battalion commander at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island. He described the recruiting, training and education of young Marines who deploy around the world to defend our country and protect our national security interests.

The symposium wrapped up with a roundtable discussion between presenters and audience moderated by university professors, Nancy Gentile Ford of the history department and Gloria Dion-Cohen of the political science department.

The symposium was designed to provide students and members of the local community with information not available through textbooks or the media. Those who attended were amazed at what they learned and suggested that a similar event be held in the future.

Veterans Corner

Dale Krothe '60

Two years ago in May 1998, we began our effort to raise $15,000 of the Veterans Memorial Scholarship Fund. Slowly but surely we are approaching that goal. To date, alumni have contributed more than $12,000. We encourage all alumni, especially our veterans, to make a donation now. Help us reach that goal before the end of 2000.

I received a gracious thank you note from our latest scholarship recipient, Joann L. Benashunas of Ringtown. In October I will have the opportunity to meet her at the scholarship awards luncheon.

A "gathering of eagles" took place on Alumni Day, Friday, May 5, at Willow Run for a reunion dinner of the classes of 1942-48. I was asked to address these elite alumni on our BU Alumni Veterans Committee projects. It was an honor and I thank them for their warm welcome and hospitality.

John Magill '48, has recently been chosen to receive the Chapel of Four Chaplains Legion of Honor. This award recognizes those who have rendered selfless service to humanity without regard to race, religion or creed. We salute John for his efforts. (See also Husky Notes 1948).

Our committee regrets to report that over the last 17 months three of our members have passed away. Curtis R. English '56, John W. Thomas '47 and Edward L. Berlin '63 were fellow veterans, good friends and tireless contributors to projects and events at Bloomsburg University. They will be missed!

Don't forget to request a bio form from the BU Alumni Office (570-389-4059 or 1-800-526-0254). The bios will be included in our Books of Service or Valor and kept on record at the Fenstemaker Alumni House.

Hope to see you at Homecoming 2000 on October 28!

War Years Reunion

Sally Hottenstein Dix '43

If you were not there, you missed a lovely evening with friends and guests!

The War Years classes (1942-1948) held a reunion on Friday, May 5 at Willow Run Inn to begin their Alumni Weekend activities.

First, Joanna Fice Buckingham '43, presented the Alumni Association with a gift from the Class of 1943. Doug Hippenstiel '68, Director of Alumni Affairs, accepted the Seiko cherry wall clock with Westminster chimes. The pendulum is engraved with "Class of 1943." The clock will be placed in the Fenstemaker Alumni House.

Joanna gave us insight to the fact that her late husband, Boyd Buckingham '43, persuaded Doug to accept the job as Director of Alumni Affairs. The college enrollment was 5600 then; now it is 7500.

Needless to say, the presentation was spiked with several appropriate jokes and, for many of us, swallowed tears.

Our friend—a friend to all—Doug responded with a sincere thank you and kind remarks.

A superb dinner followed, served with background music, tables with floral basket centerpieces and programs tied with red or blue ribbons. All veterans were identified with a red, white and blue ribbon bar pin. After the singing of America, the Pledge of Allegiance and a few class remarks, Andrew Magill '43 introduced Dale Krothe '60, chairman of the Alumni Veterans Committee.

Dale gave a resume of his interest in the military, beginning as child of eight, waving to train troops, collecting tin cans and aluminum foil in his efforts to win WWII. At 19 years of age, Dale entered the Navy and served in the Korean War from 1952 to 1956. He then read a letter sent to John Magill '48 upon his award to the Chapel's Legion of Honor on May 7 at the VFW Post 1599. Dale spoke of the Veteran's Memorial on the Alumni House front lawn as well as the Veterans Memorial Scholarship. He also talked about the "hio" form for veterans to fill out and return to the Alumni House.

Sally Hottenstein Dix '43, volunteer coordinator for the reunion this year as well as last, was given a thank-you floral centerpiece for her many-faceted effort to maintain class interaction. She has been assisted by area classmates: William Selden '43, Andrew Magill '43 and Joanna Buckingham '43.

Next year, Sally Dockey Edwards '44 and Mary Lou Fenstemaker John '45 will assume leadership for the War Years 2001 reunion to be held, once again, in conjunction with Alumni Weekend. Mark your calendars for Friday, May 4, at 6 p.m. at the Berwick Country Club.

You are all invited and it would be wonderful to share this evening together.

Reverend Lawrence McNeil has been reassigned as pastor of Sacred Heart Basilica in Conewago. He served here as campus minister since 1994.

Father Larry arrived at the university in June 1994 just before President Kozloff took office. As campus minister, he got to know students across the board—Greeks, independents, athletes and everyone in between.

He says he will remember the strong spirit of fellowship here. Dollar Dinners at the Catholic Campus Ministry house (watch out for that 64 oz. can of tomato sauce!), Homecoming parades on College Hill, helping freshman and their parents on move-in day and lunches with colleagues in the faculty dining room remain among his fond memories.

While they aren't his best memories, among the most powerful are the events following the fires of 1994 and 2000: the candlelight vigils and marches to the sites, the power of grief and hope at the funerals, the support of students for each other. Father Larry notes that what makes Greek life so powerful is not the parties but the real fraternal care.

Father Larry earned a bachelor of arts degree from St. Vincent College, Latrobe, in 1969 and a master of divinity from St. Vincent Seminary in 1972. In 1995 he received a doctor of ministry from the Graduate Theological Foundation.

From 1990 to 1994 he served as campus minister at Dickinson College, Carlisle, as well as director of ecumenical and inter-religious affairs with the Diocese of Harrisburg from 1990 to 1996.

Leading the pack ...

Having increased year-end fundraising totals 41 percent over the past four years, Bloomsburg University continues to set institutional records and maintain a top spot in Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education.

The Bloomsburg University Foundation, which secures private funds from alumni, organizations, and other foundations, raised $3,645,233 during 1999—an 18 percent increase over 1998.

"Our success has been a result of continued support from close friends of the university and some very significant contributions from new donors," says Anthony M. Ianiero, executive director of the Bloomsburg University Foundation. "This kind of continued relationship with the university indicates the confidence that people have in this institution. We're very proud of that confidence."

In addition, Bloomsburg University raised the largest dollar amount of all 14 State System of Higher Education schools in 1999. Bloomsburg also ranked among the top five universities in the categories of dollars raised per alumni, alumni participation, and percent of increase in both funds raised and endowment growth in five years.

Bloomsburg's record-breaking year comes as the university launched its first comprehensive campaign, New Challenges, New Opportunities, which focuses on funding opportunities for excellence projects, increasing academic scholarships and the annual fund, and renovating the former library into a Student Services Center.

Over $10 million has been raised toward the $11 million campaign goal, with about $1.1 million designated thus far for the Student Services Center project. The Student Services Center is expected to open during the spring semester of 2001. Over 9,400 individuals and organizations have contributed to New Challenges, New Opportunities.

"To be successful, we need the participation of all of the university's constituents in our fundraising efforts for New Challenges, New Opportunities," says Susan Hicks, manager of development operations. "Small gifts, as well as large gifts, are important because they indicate the strength of commitment our alumni, parents and friends have for Bloomsburg."

Of the $3.6 million in gifts to Bloomsburg during 1999, alumni contributed $1,177,334, or approximately 32 percent of the total. Organizations made up about 39 percent ($1,454,122), while parents (2 %), friends (13.5%), faculty and staff (2%), matching gift companies (4.6 %), and other corporations and foundations (6.9%) rounded out the remaining $1,013,777.

Alumni giving increased 5.1 percent over 1998's mark—a $359,323 jump. Additionally, the alumni participation rate increased from 14 percent in 1998 to 17.7 percent in 1999. Bloomsburg University faculty and staff members also posted a $10,280 increase in their giving.

Student Services Center
Renovation of Bloomsburg University's former Andruss Library, now being converted into a Student Services Center, is progressing as scheduled, according to Colin Reitmeyer, university project planner. The Student Services Center will increase accessibility and academic support for students. "Interior demolition is almost complete and mechanical and electrical work is underway," says Reitmeyer. "We started construction in April and we plan to be finished around the end of the year, so we're about 25 percent through the project," he added. The Student Services Center is expected to be open for student and faculty use in the spring semester of 2001. Shown is the architect's rendering of the new entrance facade for the Center.

Kozloffs contribute to Capital Campaign
Jessica and Steve Kozloff have contributed $25,000 to the Bloomsburg University Foundation. Half of the gift will be used to create an endowment to support undergraduate research while the remaining funds will support renovation of the Student Services Center. The latter part is in memory of Steve's parents, William Kozloff and Maxine Kozloff Briner. This is the Kozloff's second major gift to the university. Five years ago, they contributed $15,000 toward the construction of the new library in honor of President Kozloff's parents, Jack and Ann Sledge.
"We feel we're making an investment in the future as well as giving to the university," says President Kozloff. "We're privileged to honor our parents in this way."

Thinking about a gift of stock to support Bloomsburg's mission?

Here's a brief sample letter to accomplish the stock transfer:

(Name and address of stock broker/agent)

(Today's date)

To Whom It May Concern:

I hereby authorize (name of stock broker/agent) to transfer the title of (quantity of shares) of (name of stock/securities) to The Bloomsburg University Foundation, Inc., 400 East Second Street, Bloomsburg, PA 17815.

The Foundation's federal tax number is 23-7088491. To use a wire transfer, the DTC number is 0367. The Foundation uses USAA Brokerage, account number 6412374.

Thank you for completing this transfer.

Sincerely,

(Your name and signature)

cc: The Bloomsburg University Foundation, Inc.

Selden contributes to Student Services Center

Selden

William Selden, a member of the Bloomsburg University Foundation Board of Directors and Campaign Steering Committee member has contributed $25,000 to the Student Services Center renovation through a planned gift. He is sponsoring the office that will house ROTC programs at Bloomsburg. A veteran of World War II serving in the Army, Selden graduated from Bloomsburg in 1943. In addition to Selden, many of his family members have had military careers, including his great great grandfather, Elias Selden, who fought in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War.

New Scholarships

Earl W. ('63) and Susan Joy Lewis Nursing Scholarship—This endowed annual scholarship, honoring Phyllis Lewis, Earl Fellows Lewis, and Ronald H. Lewis, will assist one freshman nursing major beginning in the 2001-2002 academic year.

Veda Stewart

Stanley C. and Veda M. Stewart Memorial Scholarship—Through an estate gift, graduates of Bloomsburg, Millville, and Southern Columbia area high schools will benefit from this university-wide scholarship. Veda Stewart, Class of 1935, was a teacher for 20 years, serving at Mount Pleasant High School, Greenwood High School, and Millville High School. She later was controller at Bloomsburg Lincoln-Mercury.

Alumni Phonathon raises over $259,000

More than $259,000 was raised during the spring 2000 alumni phonathons, which concluded at the end of April.

The grand total, $259,108, is a 27 percent increase over 1999's total. Eileen M. Evert, coordinator of the annual fund, and Jenn Polokowski '00 and Rose Mary Duran '01, student supervisors, coordinated the on-campus program, which involved 45 student callers.

Most of the funds raised during the phonathon will support the new Student Services Center, a major focus of Bloomsburg University's comprehensive campaign, New Challenges, New Opportunities. This new center will provide busy students more convenient and easier access to the many educational and academic services available to them.

"With a high level of enthusiasm, the student callers gave first hand accounts on how current and future students will benefit from this new facility," said Evert. "I was impressed with the way the student callers articulated the necessity to consolidate student services into one building."

'I was impressed with the way the student callers articulated the necessity to consolidate student services into one building.'

"Participating in the 2000 Alumni Phonathon was a wonderful experience for me," said Duran. "Seeing how generous so many alumni are has shown me that Bloomsburg University has affected not only me, but also many other people in a positive way. With so many changes occurring here at Bloomsburg, the support of all alumni is greatly appreciated."

"Working with the phonathon has helped me gain knowledge in the development field and to acquire leadership qualities that will benefit me in the future," Polokowski added.

Of the many calls completed, 3,051 alumni made pledges during the campaign. "Alumni participation is crucial to the advancement of the University, so we were very pleased with the level of support received during the 2000 Phonathon Campaign," Evert said.

In addition to the Student Services Center, contributions and pledges to areas such as academic departments and athletic scholarships were also received.

Husky Club auction nets $12,000 for scholarships

The Fourteenth Annual Husky Club Auction and Dinner Dance was held on April 28 at Magees' 24 West Ballroom in Bloomsburg.

Over 100 guests bid on 300-plus items donated by local businesses and organizations. Proceeds from the event, which totaled $12,000, assist Bloomsburg University's general athletic scholarship program.

Popular items in this year's auction included autographed sports memorabilia and sports-related collectibles, vacation packages and hotel accommodations, a David Armstrong print, and a full-sized authentic arcade video game.

Retired Bloomsburg director of budget and administrative services, Don Hock, donated his services for the live auction portion of the evening.

Several golf outings are planned during the summer and fall, including events scheduled at Heritage Hills, York, on Sept. 15 and Frosty Valley Country Club, Danville, on Oct. 12.

Also, the Husky Club is currently sponsoring a "tuition raffle" with a top prize of $1,900—equivalent to one semester's tuition at Bloomsburg University.

For more information about these and other Husky Club events, call (570) 389-4663 or call the toll-free AlumniLine at 1-800-526-0254. More details and membership information on the Husky Club are also available at www.bloomu.edu/news/sports/pages/hskclb

Tom Davies Baseball Scholarship
As an honor to his former coach, 1968 graduate Robert Gibble has established this scholarship in Davies' name to provide financial support to Bloomsburg University Baseball Team members. Davies, who coached baseball and mens' basketball, also served as director of Bloomsburg University's career development center until his retirement in 1993. Gibble is president of Beard And Company, an accounting firm in Reading that employs 12 Bloomsburg alumni. Shown from left are Gibble, Davies and Press Enterprise reporter Millard Ludwig.

Making a Connection
The Bell Atlantic Foundation recently contributed $5,000 to support Discovery 99, a math and science camp held on campus last summer for 40 area students in 6th, 7th and 8th grades. Shown from left are Bell employee Mike Pickup, camp participant Jessica Lowe and camp organizer Steve Kokoska, mathematics, computer science and statistics.

Banking on Bloomsburg Success
First Federal Bank has contributed $10,000 toward the creation of a new computer lab in the Magee Center. Shown from left are, (seated) Gary Gatski, First Federal senior vice president for special projects and Lee Beard, First Federal CEO. Standing are Michael Vavrek, dean of continuing and distance education, and president Kozloff. Last year, First Federal also contributed $10,000 to the university for scholarships.

Leading the pack continued from page 37

"We are very pleased to see that the overall alumni giving rate has increased," says Hicks. "That's a significant fact during Bloomsburg's campaign, and we're hopeful that it will continue to increase."

One of Bloomsburg's largest donations came from the Community Government Association, the university's student-run governing board, which contributed a campaign gift of over $1 million to support the renovation of the university bookstore and to create upper campus recreation facilities.

'We are very pleased to see that the overall alumni giving rate has gone up. That's a significant fact during Bloomsburg's campaign, and we're hopeful that it will continue to increase.'

Among other significant gifts to The Bloomsburg University Foundation in 1999 were from the estate of Eleanor Sharadin Faust ('38), the estate of Richard W. Sands, and gifts from Mildred Quick Muller ('34) and Robert "Doc" Warren.

An endowed distinguished lecturer series for the nursing department was established with funds from the Faust estate and the Margaret E. McCern Memorial Scholarship was established via the Richard W. Sands estate. McCern taught Business Education at Bloomsburg University from 1954 to 1976.

Muller's gift supports the scholarship established in her name and benefits incoming freshmen students in the College of Business. Warren, faculty emeritus, who retired in 1983 from Bloomsburg University's department of history, designated his gift to support the Presidential Leadership Scholarships and to establish an annuity. He earned honorary alumnus status in 1995.

'38 alumna leaves $100,000 to nursing

The generosity of a woman who enjoyed attending cultural events at Bloomsburg will enable the nursing department to establish an annual lecture series.

Eleanor Sharadin Faust, a 1938 graduate of Bloomsburg State Teachers College, who died Jan. 8, 1999, has bequeathed $100,000 to the nursing department for a permanent endowment to fund annual lectures by distinguished nursing professionals.

Eleanor Sharadin Faust

A nurse herself, Faust was director of nursing at Laurelton Village before her retirement in 1976.

"She was proud to be a nurse and she was proud to be a graduate of Bloomsburg State Teachers College," says attorney Thomas Clark, who helped Faust write her will. "She was actively employed in the nursing profession all her life."

Seniors contribute $20,000 to Student Services Center

Michelena "Miki" Smith

As a parting gift to Bloomsburg University, the "Class of the Century" raised almost $20,000 in pledges and gifts to benefit their alma mater. Senior class officers Michelena "Miki" Smith, Tami Bauman, John Bender, Amanda Lawton, and David Marcolla were instrumental to the success of the class gift campaign.

"All five class officers should be commended for working diligently to secure gifts through the Senior Class mailing, phonathon and one-on-one solicitations," said Eileen M. Evert, Bloomsburg University's coordinator of the annual fund. "They surpassed their original goal of $15,000."

"I was very satisfied with the number of seniors—134 to be exact—who believe in the tradition of giving back to the university and who supported the class gift with a contribution, said Smith, class president. "The fact that the totals soared $5,000 above our goal shows the dedication of the Class of 2000 and our commitment to success."

The class project will help to fund the student computer lounge in the new Student Services Center.

Working in a brand new lab
The biology department recently remodeled a lab in Hartline Science Center with help from the Bloomsburg University Foundation and the National Science Foundation. The Bloomsburg University Foundation funded $38,000 of new furniture for the lab, while the National Science Foundation provided a $49,000 matching grant to purchase equipment. Here, faculty member George Davis works with student Artie Hagelgans (foreground) to extract DNA from a sample of carrot tissue. Davis, along with colleagues George Chamuris, Thomas Klinger, Judith Kipe-Nolt, Mark Melnychuk, Margaret Till, Casey Shonis, Cynthia Surmacz, wrote the NSF grant for the lab. The lab will be used primarily for the Integrated Physiology Laboratory class, which begins next fall. The new course will combine the laboratory portion of plant, animal, bacteria and fungi physiology courses. "This will allow us to look at the commonalties of life," says Davis. "Living things all have to face the same problems of adaptation to common problems."

Aldrich contributes to Alumni Association
Doris Morse Aldrich, class of 1924, has left the Alumni Association $15,565.

Lewisburg Middle School principal accepts award

Floyd W. Walters '64, principal of Lewisburg Middle School, had the privilege of accepting the Donald E. Eichhorn Outstanding Middle School Award for 2000 on behalf of the school staff at the recent Pennsylvania Middle School Association (PMSA) conference.

Eichhorn, for whom the award is named, is recognized nationally as founder and proponent of the middle level education movement. He was superintendent of Lewisburg School District from 1981 to 1988.

A number of Bloomsburg graduates teach at the notable middle school: Diana Trzcinski Antolick '98, special education teacher; Mark S. Berg '78, 6th grade reading specialist and science teacher; Donald H. Bowman '66, psychologist; Trevor A. Fetterman '99, computer technology specialist; William W. Haas '64, 7th grade social studies and geography teacher; Kathleen J. Hughes '94, 7th and 8th grade French teacher; Virginia Boudman Hughes '64, student support teacher; Richard R. Kirkpatrick '76, 8th grade science teacher; Cynthia Hutchinson Robbins '92, 7th grade English teacher; Richard Y. Runyan '65, 7th grade reading specialist; Judith A. Ryan '95, special education teacher; Christine Brady Shipe '88, special education teacher; Kathleen H. Styer '97, 7th grade math teacher, Tris J. West '94, 6th grade math, science and social studies teacher; Patricia Pinamonti Wetzel '93, 8th grade reading teacher; Brenda Crispell Zack '86, guidance counselor.

In addition, Lewisburg Middle School has been chosen by PMSA to present sessions at their regional and state conferences, 29 in the past ten years. The school has also been visited by or provided on-site workshops for 19 schools.

In 1999, the school was recognized as a Middle School of Distinction by Pennsylvania Education Secretary Eugene Hickok.

Berks County

BERKS COUNTY – Alumni attending the family picnic at Gring's Mill in Berks County on June 21, 2000, were Mary Anne Klemkosky '59, Jack Mulka '66, Brenda Witman Mack '69, Vicki Gross Sproesser '70, Dwight Ackerman '71, Scott Heffelfinger '71, Barbara Hershey Myer '71, Kim Feinour Cooke '74, Ray Edwards '74, Janis Ellis Edwards '77, Charles Chabb '78, Marcy Watkins Demangone '83, Kim Kearney '84, Michael Haggiubothom '86, Cindy Hepler Shires '86, Carol Duchan Weller '87, Stephanie Husted Fetterman '88, Steve Fetterman '88, Lisa Musto Shober '88, Mark Shober '88 and Elena Lockard '00. Special guest was Janet English, widow of Curt English '56.*

West Chester

WEST CHESTER – Bloomsburg University alumni, parents and guests attended a pre-game lunch prior to the women's and men's basketball games at West Chester University on January 29, 2000. Arrangements for the lunch were made by Lori Clarke '97, a member of the Alumni Board of Directors. Others in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Banks, Don Boychuck '53, Donald J. Butler '53, Lee Davis '67 (a member of the University Council of Trustees), Hedy Davis '82 M, Ed Janes '54, Dave Linkchorst '53, Barb Hagerman McDaniel '74, Brian McDaniel, Craig McDaniel, Megan Mulka, Chester T. Pasek, John Paal '72, Claudia Paul, Williamae L. Reed, Bob Smith '76, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spinelli and Caleen Tampkins '96. Doug Hippenstiel '68, director of alumni affairs, represented the Alumni Association.*

Special Addition

The Alumni Association had hoped to start construction this summer on a significant addition to the Fenstemaker Alumni House. When bids were opened on June 29, 2000, however, they were significantly higher than anyone expected, including the architects.

The officers of the Alumni Association have asked the architects to make modifications, which will not affect the size or scope of the project. New bids will be sought later this year and if they are acceptable construction could start in early spring of 2001.

Nearly half of the additional 2,675 square feet will be devoted to a Great Room, named for Curtis R. English '56, interim president of the university from 1993 to 1994, who' passed away last year.

The expansion will also include a new entrance foyer and reception area, restrooms, kitchen, coatroom and storage area. Other improvements to the existing structure, such as a new heating system and a wired smoke alarm system, will also be included in the project.

Purchased in 1985 by the Alumni Association, Alumni House is named in honor of the late Howard F. Fenstemaker '12, long-time faculty member and Alumni Association president. The 1929 structure was purchased from the estate of Dorothy John Dillon '24.

This important project–our special addition to the Alumni House–is being funded by a Bloomsburg University Foundation grant and the support of individual alumni.

Watch your mail in September for an opportunity to be part of this exciting project. If you would like to make your contribution now, please contact the Alumni Association by calling 800-526-0254 or by sending email to alum@bloomu.edu.
